Play It Again, Zita

WILLIAMSPORT, Md. — They're not twins. They're not even sisters.

And yet, their pedigrees are the same. Exactly.

These two calves are inextricably tied by the molecular basis of heredity, that double helix construction localized in cell nuclei — deoxyribonucleic acid — otherwise known as DNA.

Now we finally see why we had to study biology in eighth grade.

At the aptly-named Futuraland 2020 Holsteins, the future is now for the Wiles family. Two new additions to their herd, "Cyagra Z" and "Genesis Z" are the clones of the farm's "Con-Acres-HS Zita-ET" (2E-94, GMD DOM), an exceptional cow that has proven herself in both production and type.

"When we were approached about this, I don't think either one of us (Charles or Greg Wiles) flinched at it," said Greg Wiles. "We jumped in — it was a way of trying something new at its early stages."

'Jumping In'

The story began a year ago when Jim Cooper, from Holstein Friesian Services, was on the farm to inspect a bull for a Japanese buyer. An offhand remark about cloning lead to a conversation about the topic. Fueled by information Cooper had from "Cyagra," the animal cloning division of ACT (Advanced Cell Technology), the Wiles family investigated the option.

The Wiles family eventually decided to take the company, Cyagra, based in Worcester, Mass., up on the offer. "We have a really good working relationship with the company. We talk just about every week," said Wiles, exchanging information and ideas.

To secure the necessary cells, which contain Zita's genetic information, in early 2000 the Wiles got a kit with a hand-held, one-eighth inch needle which punched a piece of Zita's ear. In the lab, the tissue sample from the ear was cultured in a dish to make cells continue to multiply. This culture can be kept indefi-

Zita, squared: "Cyagra Z" and "Genesis Z" are the clones of Zita, once ranked number one for CTPI and with records to 39,620 pounds of milk. The Wiles family of Williamsport, Md., believes that her genetics are worth preserving enough to venture into the new territory of cloning. "These calves can start where Zita left off — expand on what she did through her daughters," said Greg Wiles. "Cows are not going to live forever and this is a way of preserving her for additional time. The calves are a carbon copy of what made Zita so good. The big thing now is keeping everything else the same."

Bunting Joins Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Mildred M. "Millie" Bunting, editor of the Livestock Reporter since 1975, has taken a part-time position on the editorial/market support staff of Lancaster Farming.

Bunting, who studied journalism at Penn State University in the early '50s, began her first job in the field 20 years later in 1973 at the Lancaster Livestock Reporter for the late Issac M. Groff, who founded the weekly tabloid in March 1950. She became managing editor in 1974 and editor in 1977.

Bunting noted she had no experience with livestock. But she said she learned from a farmer about odors from the hog pens at the stockyards. He told her, "That's the smell of money."

Bunting will provide additional and more in-depth market coverage for Lancaster Farming.

Her most rewarding experience on the Reporter, she said, is having met so many outstanding young people involved in livestock projects and attending the national conventions of FFA and 4-H.

Bunting was born in Lancaster City, the daughter of the late Jacob A. and Ruth Groff Martin, both of whom grew up on farms. Her dad became fascinated with the heavy equipment building roads in rural Dauphin County near Hershey. He became a steam shovel operator and subsequently went into the excavating business.

Bunting was educated in the Lancaster city school system and was graduated from McCaskey High School. Many

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
March 21, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying interest was no better than fair as dealers remained cautious and unwilling to assume much product beyond normal committments. Offerings of boneless-skinless breasts were more than sufficient, and bone-in breasts were usually available at discounted levels. Dark meat cuts were clearing well as draw through export channels remained active. Wings were at least adequate Retail and distributive movement was light, with most purchasers determined to keep floorstocks balanced with the limited demand. The market tone was fully steady on dark meat items, no better than steady to instances weak on the balance.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MARCH 26–APRIL 1, 2001

APRIL FOOL'S, APRIL 1

"IT GOES ON"

Robert Lee Frost, born on March 26, 1874, was not a man of few words. Nevertheless, the four-time Pulitzer Prize winning poet could be concise: "In three words I can sum up everything I've learned about life," he told us. "It goes on." As the unofficial poet laureate of the United States, the aged Frost was invited to speak at John F. Kennedy's inauguration in 1961.

He composed a special poem for the occasion, which spoke of "A golden age of poetry and power Of which this noonday's the beginning hour." His age also gave him perspective, it seemed. "Why abandon a belief merely because it ceases to be true," he penned in 1956. "Cling to it long enough, and...it will turn true again." Indeed, age evidently had its virtues. "I never dared to be a radical when young For fear it would make me conservative when old." Robert Frost died in 1963.

Freedom lies in being bold. –Robert Frost

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

When March thunders, tools and arms get rusty.

When March has April weather, April will have March weather.

A windy March and a rainy April make a beautiful May.

OPINION

Recessionary Effects

In the book, "The Coming Internet Depression," by Michael J. Mandel (Basic Books, 2000), the author gives a concise and often insightful historical perspective into some of the causes of the Great Depression.

Though the book focuses on why the "high-tech boom," mostly caused by the Internet, will go bust (though some say it already has), Mandel proposes ways in which we can ride this out.

(Internet stocks really caused the great expansion of the '90s, and so, like the industrial revolution, a downturn is inevitable.)

But what was appealing was the way Mandel explained how the Great Depression came about.

Mandel believes back in the late 1920s and very early 1930s, the feds, because of their moralistic stance, wanted to "punish" the people responsible for the excesses of the Roaring '20s. You know, the time it took people to invest all they had, put it in stocks, make lots of money, live like kings and queens, and eventually lose it all.

So why did many suffer so much?

According to Mandel, the federals simply turned what should have been a mild recession into something worse. The feds stubbornly kept money out of the economy, refused to budge in lowering interest rates to boost business, got callous when banks went belly up, and continued to lock up any hopes of bailout.

The recession then worsened, leading the country and the world down a dark, slippery slope, which it took a world war to cure.

The time's saving grace? About 30 percent of the U.S. population lived on the farm. When times got tough, the farm provided for you. You had food and shelter. What else was important?

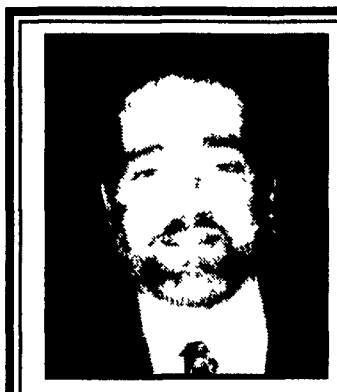
What economists fear is: what if a Great Depression would happen today, with less than 2 percent of the entire population making a living on the farm?

Many agree: it would be a nightmare. Who knows how chaotic it could be?

A potential long-term recession this year will hinge on what the public will do with the proposed $1.5 trillion President Bush tax cut. If the money is spent, so say economists, a recession could be avoided. Potentially. But if the money is stashed away — it's supposed — there goes the economy.

These are theories.

But it makes you wonder. Thirty (and some figures put it higher) percent of the public on the farm! Maybe, despite a big depression, those times truly were the "good old days." Certainly, for some, it may have taken the edge off some tough economic times.



Now Is The Time

To Recycle Agricultural Plastic Waste As Plastic Lumber

The waste materials generated on farms have changed a lot over the past few decades. Today plastic is used for many purposes, including bale wrap, silage bags, trench silo covers, plastic mulch in horticultural production, and shrink-wrap for palletized supplies.

All of this has contributed to a tremendous amount of waste accumulating on farms.

Burning in open fires is an unacceptable solution since it creates a tremendous amount of pollution both as particulate matter in the smoke and as petroleum by products left by this low-temperature burning. Taking this material to the Lancaster County Municipal Incinerator, where the material is burned at very high temperatures under controlled conditions, has been a good option. The waste energy produced is captured to create electricity and the high temperatures and controlled environment results in very clean burn.

Now a lower cost option is available to recycle this waste plastic. This material is being collected and baled in Lancaster County for use in the production of plastic lumber. The bales of recycled plastic material will be hauled to the Trex company factory in Virginia for this purpose. There it will be mixed with waste wood chips and sawdust to produce a product for use in plastic decking.

The waste material is being collected at the Dan Zook farm located at 183 South Farmersville Road, Leola. Any polyethylene product will be accepted, which includes plastic mulch, ag bag plastic, bale wrap, silage covers, greenhouse covers, and shrink-wrap. Materials that are not acceptable include plastic twine, row covers, molded plastic such as greenhouse trays and pots, milk jugs, and pesticide or other containers.

A $25 per ton tipping fee will be collected when the material is delivered to the farm. This is less than half of what it would cost to take the material to the municipal incinerator in Lancaster County.

If you have a collection of waste plastic, take the time to remove it while this opportunity is still available. Call Dan Zook at (717) 656-4422 to make arrangements before delivering your material. This will insure you can be unloaded in a quick and efficient manner, saving time for all.

To Evaluate Small Grain Fields

Take this opportunity before your spring fieldwork begins in earnest to walk your small grain fields to evaluate the stand.

Satisfactory yields depend on having approximately 40 heads per linear foot of row when planted in seven-inch rows. To achieve this, we need a stand of 18 to 20 plants per foot of row.

Winter grains have the ability to increase tiller production as the population is reduced. This reduces the effect of low populations on yield. However, populations can be reduced to the point that the land area should be replanted into another crop later in the spring. This occurs when we have about a 50 percent stand remaining or 9 to 10 plants per linear foot of row.

To Welcome A New Faculty Member

Erick De Wolf recently joined the Department of Plant Pathology as an assistant professor.

Dr. De Wolf, a native of Michigan, received his doctorate from North Dakota State University, where his research dealt with prediction and management of wheat foliar diseases.

Subsequently, De Wolf took a position with The Ohio State University where he was part of a multistate effort to manage wheat head scab. Erick, his wife, and two daughters moved to State College in early January.

De Wolf's responsibilities at Penn State include extension and research. He will develop an extension education and research program for field crop diseases. De Wolf's specific research interests include the biology and management of residue-borne pathogens. Erick is looking forward to working with you to address disease management issues of Pennsylvania.

Quote of The Week:

"If, to please the people, we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterward defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest repair."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IS THIS ANY WAY TO RUN ANYTHING?

Background Scripture:
Acts 5:12-42.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 103:15-18.

It is fascinating to me how, on the one hand, we can so applaud biblical heroes, and on the other, we condemn those who emulate them.

From early times to the present, the Church has not had a very good record in its responses to reformers. The Pope did not write Martin Luther a letter saying, "Martin, you've got some good ideas here." The Anglican hierarchy did not present John Wesley with any "Evangelist-Of-The-Year" awards.

Those of us who on grounds of Christian conscience opposed segregation and the Vietnam War were usually regarded as an embarrassment to our church hierarchies and an affront to our communities.

That's just the way things are in our society. We swear nominal allegiance to God, but it is the secular and ecclesiastical structures that claim our first, highest loyalty and obedience. It is not easy for a Christian to say "no" to either his or her government or church when faith seems to require it.

We don't know how many months or years marked the intervals between Peter's sermon at Pentecost and his second and third arrests, but it would appear that Peter — and John — got themselves into trouble in no time at all, and repeatedly at that. The first time (Acts 4:5-23), Peter laid down his unyielding position: "Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you rather than to God, you must judge; for we cannot but speak of what we have seen and heard." Because they had no case against them, the authorities threatened them and released them.

Touched By An Angel?

The high priest, jealous because of their success among the people, had Peter and John arrested again. But, assisted by an angel, Peter and John escaped from prison. (Can you imagine the ruckus that would arise from a jailed Christian today claiming the help of an angel to escape from prison?)

A third time Peter and John are arrested and this time brought to the council.

"We strictly charged you," said the high priest, "not to teach in his name, but here you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching and you intend to bring this man's (Jesus') blood upon us" (5:28). How can we afford to let people defy our precise and specific orders? That's no way to run anything. Conscience is all well and good so long as it doesn't get in the way of loyalty and obedience.

Once again, however, Peter sounds the same note he did in their previous encounter: "We must obey God rather than men." Understandably, the council members were enraged at this effrontery, and we are told that the members of the council wanted to kill them. That is also a common human reaction: dead men and women cannot object or obstruct us. How many of our disputes and problems does human nature attempt to "solve" in this manner? Too many.

Take Care What You Do!

It is at this point that help for Peter and John comes from an unexpected source — a man named Gamaliel. A teacher of the law and obviously a member of the council, Gamaliel attempts to bring some reason and order into this crisis with a plan so pragmatic and rational that the enraged council cools down and agrees with him.

"Men of Israel," he advises, "take care what you do with these men" (5:33). This well-respected teacher of Hebrew law appeals to the council members' own self interests.

Don't make a terrible mistake, he counsels. Citing two previous insurgents, Theudas and Judas the Galilean, whose movements failed, Gamaliel reminds them of a principle that his fellow council members — and the whole world — tend to forget: "... if this plan or this undertaking is of men, it will fail; but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow them. You might even be found opposing God" (5:38,39).

Sound advice, is it not? Let God sort it out, for if it is God's will, we cannot defeat it in the long run. So why oppose it in the short run?

But, still, we can't help wondering: is this the way to run anything? A church? A business? A community? A country? A world?

Why don't we give it a try?

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
March 16, 2001

February Milk Production Down 0.9 Percent

- February production was adjusted for an extra day in 2000.
- Class III peaks at $13 in September.
- Class IV peaks at $14.10 in May

USDA released the February milk production report today. Adjusted for an extra day for leap year in 2000, February 2001 milk production for 20 select dairy states was 11.2 billion pounds, down 0.9 percent.

January revised milk production, at 12.1 billion pounds, was down 1.6 percent. Production per cow in February for 20 select states averaged 1,440 pounds, down 66 pounds from a year ago. And, cow numbers for these states in February was 7.77 million head, 10,000 head less than January 2001.

The market is feeling the pinch. Buyers, commodity traders, and speculators are all betting that the milk supply will be tight this year and commodity prices will be much higher. That sentiment is reflected in the dairy futures prices released today by the Chicago Mercantile Exchange (CME).

The CME Milk Futures, or Class III futures prices, rose today to $11.38 per CWT for March and peaking at $13 per CWT in September. The futures market is expecting Class III prices to rise quickly through the spring to $12.90 per CWT as early as July. There is expectation that cheese production will slow and available milk supplies will be rationed.

The CME Class IV futures had even more price strength. Class IV futures prices are expected to rise from $13.40 per CWT in March 2001 to $14.10 in May. Prices thereafter will fall to $13.80 per CWT in June and rise to $13.90 by the fall months.

Butter is the main driver of Class IV prices. The market is expecting butter to be tighter than cheese.

Tobacco Auction No More

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — It was reported in county newspapers this week that the Pennsylvania Tobacco Marketing Association Auction is being phased out.

Auction Manager Dennis Hess noted the association will be working on a newsletter to send out to members to notify them of the closing. The association will not officially dissolve, according to Hess, until all tobacco grown by its members in the past three years has been sold.

Below break-even prices for a time at the auction have caused this to happen, along with more private contracting by companies in the fields.

USDA Establishes Toll-Free Foot-And-Mouth Disease Call Line

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA has established a toll-free telephone center to respond to questions from the public, industry, and media regarding USDA's response to the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Europe. The toll-free number is (800) 601-9327. International callers can reach the center by dialing (301) 734-9257.

The phone center is staffed by veterinarians and import/export experts from USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service who can explain the restrictions and regulations impacting people and products arriving at U.S. ports-of-entry from foot-and-mouth disease affected countries.

Foot-and-mouth disease is a severe, highly communicable viral disease of cattle and swine. It also affects sheep, goats, deer, and other cloven-hoofed ruminants. The U.S. has been free of foot-and-mouth disease since 1929.

butter remained strong this week at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Block prices were between $1.30 and $1.32 per pound. Barrel cheese prices were $1.2675 to $1.28 per pound. Grade AA butter prices rose from $1.5050 per pound on Monday, March 12 to $1.53 by Friday, March 16.

The milk production report for February shows only 5 of the 20 select dairy states had positive growth in production from the same month a year ago. Adjusted for leap year, those five states were California (3.4 percent), Idaho (8.8 percent), Indiana (8.0 percent), Michigan (2.2 percent), and New Mexico (1.8 percent). States with the largest negative grow rates were Missouri (-14.8 percent), Texas (-13.2 percent), Arizona (-9.3 percent), Illinois (-6.3 percent), and Minnesota (-5.3 percent). These numbers were a bit odd in that 16 of the 20 states had positive growth in cow numbers, but only 5 of the 20 had positive growth in production per cow.

Produce Auctions Ready To Begin Season

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Mid-Atlantic and Northeast produce growers will soon be able to sell their crops as produce auctions open for the season.

Some have already opened the past week.

Several area auctions begin the season with bedding plants and flowers. Also, early season crops grown in high tunnels or other systems are becoming available, in addition to spring onions and cool-season crops.

Two of the largest area auctions, Leola Produce and Weaverland Produce, begin Tuesday next week.

Following is an alphabetical auction list and their opening days and hours.

• Buffalo Valley Produce, Mifflinburg. The auction begins April 17 and will operate Tuesdays and Thursdays.

• Cumberland Valley Produce, Shippensburg. Season begins March 27 at 9 a.m., featuring flowers of all kinds, locally grown.

• Kirkwood Produce, Kirkwood. A tentative date of April 18 has been established but wasn't certain as of presstime. Contact Bill Bard at (717) 529-6416 or 529-2748.

• Kutztown Produce, Fleetwood. Starting date was March 20 at 10 a.m., running Tuesdays and Thursdays with flowers and nursery items.

• Leola Produce Auction, Leola. Beginning March 27 at 9:30 a.m. and continuing Tuesdays and Thursdays.

• Snyder County Produce Auction, Port Trevorton. Auction opened March 16 at 10:30 a.m.

• Weaverland Produce Auction, New Holland. Auction opens March 27 at 9 a.m. and continues every Tuesday and Thursday. Sold will be mostly flowers, nursery stock, and gardening items.

Auctions that did not respond as of presstime were Lebanon Valley Produce, Reistville; Morrison Cove Produce, Roaring Spring; and Farmers Produce Auction, Mount Hope, Ohio.

Pork Quality Assurance Training

DANVILLE (Montour Co.) — Pork producers are invited to a meeting to receive certification or re-certification training in quality assurance. The meeting will be Thursday, March 29 at 7 p.m.

The meeting will be at the Danville Buying Station, Old Bloom Road (next to the SPCA) near Danville.

The Pork Quality Assurance program is a multi-level education program to enhance the quality of the pork sold to consumers. The Pork Quality Assurance program is for all pork producers regardless of the size of their operation.

The benefits of participation for the individual producer are to: improve management practices; avoid violative drug residues; decrease production costs; and increase awareness of food safety concerns.

US. Remains Free OF BSE And FMD

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. remains free of foot-and-mouth disease (FMD) and Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE), or what is commonly referred to as mad cow disease.

There have been no cases of either disease in the U.S., due in large part to aggressive prevention measures designed to protect U.S. cattle herds and assure the safety of the beef supply for American consumers. Below is a summary of facts about FMD and BSE, including prevention measures for both:

Foot-and-Mouth Disease:

• Background

Foot-and-mouth disease (FMD) is a highly contagious viral disease that does not affect humans but has devastating effects on animals with cloven hooves, such as cattle, swine, sheep, goats and deer. The U.S.has not had a case of foot-and-mouth disease since 1929, an outbreak that was quickly contained and eradicated.

There are seven types of the FMD virus, all of which have similar symptoms. Immunity to one type does not protect animals from other types. The average incubation period for FMD is between three and eight days, but can be up to two weeks in some cases. The disease is rarely fatal but may kill very young animals. Animals that survive are often debilitated and experience severe loss in milk or meat production.

• Spread

Foot-and-mouth disease is a highly contagious virus and can be spread by movement of infected animals, movement of contaminated vehicles, and by contaminated facilities used to hold animals. It also can infect animals through contaminated hay or feedstuffs and if susceptible animals drink from a common water source.

While FMD is not considered a threat to human health, people who come in contact with the virus can spread it to animals through clothing, footwear or other equipment/materials. The virus can harbor in the human nasal passages for as long as 28 hours. Wind also can spread the virus through the air.

• Economic Effects

If FMD were to occur in the U.S., the degree of economic impact would depend on how quickly the disease was identified and effective control measures put in place. If it was controlled quickly and eradicated, as was the case with the last outbreak in the U.S. in 1929, the damage might be small. However, if the disease became widespread, the economic loss could easily be many billions of dollars.

The most serious effects would result from the necessity of destroying animals in order to eradicate the disease. In addition, countries with FMD experience restricted exports.

• Prevention

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) regularly monitors for any disease among U.S. cattle herds and takes aggressive steps to prevent FMD from spreading to the U.S. whenever there is an outbreak in other countries:

- As part of its ongoing surveillance program, the USDA conducts hundreds of field inquiries each year in an effort to detect animal diseases that might affect livestock.

- When there is an outbreak of FMD in another country, the U.S. temporarily prohibits the importation of animals and animal products from that country into the United States. These restrictions augment those already in place on ruminants and ruminant products to prevent the introduction of BSE into the U.S.

- The government also prohibits travelers from carrying into the United States any agricultural products, particularly animal products that could spread FMD. Passengers are required to identify any farm contact to Customs and USDA officials. All baggage is subject to inspection. Violations could result in penalties of up to $1,000.

- A team of experts (40 federal, state and University officials) is sent to the European Union or other country with an outbreak to monitor, evaluate and assist in containment efforts.

- There is heightened alert at ports of entry and airports to ensure passengers, luggage and cargo are checked as appropriate. This includes placing additional inspectors and dog teams at airports to check incoming flights and passengers.

- USDA officials also are stationed around the globe to monitor and coordinate with the state agriculture officials.

- USDA recently initiated an aggressive public education campaign that includes additional signage in airports, public service announcements, website, and other tools to inform the public about this important issue and steps they can take to prevent it from entering the United States.

The USDA also recently established an 800 number to respond to questions from the public, industry and media about the foot-and-mouth outbreak in Europe.

Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy

• Background

First diagnosed in 1986, BSE is a degenerative disease affecting the central nervous system of cattle. Commonly known as "mad cow disease," BSE has not been found in the United States, but it has been detected in the United Kingdom and other European countries.

Research from the U.K. indicates the BSE disease agent has been found in brain tissue, the spinal cord and retina (eye) tissue of naturally infected cattle. It has not been detected in muscle meat or milk.

• Prevention

A surveillance program begun in 1990 by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has found no evidence of BSE in U.S. cattle. In addition, the USDA, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and many arms of the U.S. livestock industry have taken a number of measures for more than a decade to prevent BSE from occurring in the U.S.

Keeping BSE from entering or occurring in this country is a top priority for the beef industry and U.S. government.

- The United States was the first country in the world to implement stringent feed and import bans without having BSE within its borders.

No beef has been imported from the U.K. since 1985. In 1989, the U.S. banned the importation of ruminant animals (cattle, sheep, goats, deer, elk and buffalo) and at-risk ruminant products (such as meat and bone meal) from all countries where BSE had been found.

- In 1997, the USDA banned imports of all live ruminant animals and at-risk products from all European countries.

- Also in 1997, the FDA banned the feeding of most mammal-derived protein supplements to cattle and other ruminants because, in Europe, the disease spread through feed containing protein supplements that carried the BSE disease agent. The feed ban is a critical firewall measure and is an extra precaution against BSE.

While BSE has not been found in the U.S., the feed ban assures that if BSE somehow ever did get into this country, it would be quickly isolated and eradicated.

- While the 1997 ban is a critical firewall measure, it should be noted that just feeding mammal-derived proteins to cattle does not cause BSE in and of itself. BSE is only spread by feed if that feed is contaminated with the disease agent.

- The USDA also continues to take stringent measures. In December 2000, it banned imports of all rendered animal protein products, regardless of species, from all European countries.

- The U.S. beef industry urges full compliance with all federal regulations and will continue cooperative efforts with the U.S. government to keep America's cattle herds safe from BSE.

Red Angus Develops Heifer Pregnancy EPDs

DENTON, Texas — In terms of economic importance, reproduction is the single most important trait to be considered in a cow-calf operation. Research studies have estimated the economic value of reproduction to be anywhere from two to 10 times the economic value of carcass traits. Whatever the proportion, reproduction is clearly a trait that should be emphasized.

The Red Angus Association of America (RAAA) has led the seedstock industry in whole herd reporting and genetic prediction of female fertility. Stayability was the first truly meaningful female fertility EDP offered to measure sustained fertility. This year, RAAA has continued to break new ground with the development of a genetic prediction for Heifer Pregnancy.

As with any EPD, interpretation of differences between sires is very important. The difference between Heifer Pregnancy EPDs of any two bulls is the expected difference in pregnancy rate (expressed as a probability) of those bulls' daughters provided they are developed as replacements, exposed, and expected to calve as 2-year-olds. For example, bull A has a Heifer Pregnancy EPD of-1 and Bull B has a Heifer Pregnancy EPD of 9. It would be safe to expect bull B's daughters to have a 10 percent higher probability of becoming pregnant and successful entering the herd than daughters of bull A.

Ultimately, Heifer Pregnancy EPDs can assist to increase pregnancy rates in heifers, Stayability EDPs can be used to increase the probability of them staying in a herd.

The goal of the RAAA is to reliably describe reproduction growth and carcass traits. From an economic standpoint, the most important of these is reproduction. Based on this philosophy, the RAAA and its members have committed the resources necessary to collect and analyze the data that will provide the industry with economically relevant reproductive EPDs.

Informational Meeting On FMD Scheduled

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease spreading among livestock herds in Europe, the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee has arranged for an informational meeting to update lawmakers and the public on the potential threat of the disease to Pennsylvania agriculture, committee chairman Rep. Raymond Bunt Jr. (R-147) said recently.

The presentation by animal health professionals is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. Wednesday, April 4, in Room 140, Main Capitol. The officials will focus on foot-and-mouth disease and bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE), popularly known as "mad cow disease."

"While neither of these livestock diseases has shown up in Pennsylvania and efforts are currently in place to stop them from spreading from Europe to the United States, I think it's important for lawmakers and the public to have as much information as possible," Bunt said.

"I asked the Department of Agriculture to organize a presentation to the committee and answer questions regarding the steps the department is planning to take and is actively taking at this point to ensure that these diseases don't pose a threat to Pennsylvania farmers and consumers.

"We know the situation is serious in Europe and that it could spread to the United States if we aren't vigilant," Bunt continued. "Pennsylvania is a top dairy and livestock state, and an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease or BSE could be economically devastating, not to mention the potential threat of BSE to human health.

"This country has been free of foot-and-mouth disease since 1929, and BSE has not spread to our shores. I want to make sure it stays that way."

Among the regulatory and diagnostic entities that will be represented at the presentation include the Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services, USDA-APHIS, and the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine. Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr. is also expected to attend.

Seminar Addresses Ways To Pass On The Family Farm

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

GAP (Lancaster Co.) — Passing on the family farm often creates such big issues that many farm families do nothing. Unfortunately, doing nothing results in future consequences such as higher taxes and losing the family farm.

To help families face transitioning the farm to the younger generation, Pennsylvania Farm Link conducts seminars throughout the state.

A recent day-long workshop at Gap Diner addressed legal, financial, and emotional issues. Lawyers, experts, and families who experienced farm transitions provided viewpoints.

Marion Bowlan, executive director for Farm Link, addressed the problems farm families face with transitioning from both professional and personal experiences.

Bowlan, who has a degree in psychology, is intriqued by the emotional issues that families grapple with, which often color decision making.

Farm families face three universal dilemmas:

- How to retain adequate income for the senior generation retirement
- How to be fair with all children
- How to set up a plan so that successor is not burdened with excessive debt.

"Being fair does not necessarily mean treating children equally," Bowlan said.

Echoing this statement was Pennsylvania House Representative Art Hershey, who gradually transferred the family farm to his son Duane. Hershey said that when setting up the transfer, he took into consideration the many years his son had helped on the farm, more so than the other children.

Hershey said that his plans to turn over the family farm began when his oldest son was only six years old. But those plans needed to be adjusted and adapted many times because of the changing economy and children's career preferences.

Hershey said that he recommends waiting until a child has married to make sure that the spouse is supportive of a farming venture. He believes a limited partnership enables an easier financial transition.

The Hersheys' limited partnership specified that every calf born after the partnership was formed belonged to the partnership. This allowed the son to build equity rather than forcing him to purchase the existing herd.

Hershey said, "If you want your child to succeed, don't charge for every thing, but list corn, straw, and hay as donations to the partnership, which has a tax benefit. Include a clause that the child will be charged for the donations if they

Marion Bowlan, executive director of Pennsylvania Farm Link, offers professional expertise and personal experience on pitfalls to avoid when transitioning the family farm.

Pa. House Representative Art Hershey explains his perspective in transferring the family farm to one of his children.

drop out of the partnership."

Hershey believes parents should do everything possible to enable their children to succeed. He said, "When we leave this earth — the only thing we leave are our children that money can't replace."

"My father never really gave money, but he gave me opportunity," said Bill Beam, Elverson farmer. He praised his parents and two brothers for setting up a plan that enabled him and his wife Robin to take over the family farm.

The transition began in 1990, with Beam taking over the crops and hog operation. Last winter, he completed the purchase of the family farm. During the interim years, he was able to purchase some apartment buildings and additional acreage

Beam said the family agreement was set up in such a way that it enabled his father to sell his land, get out of debt, and buy a nice retirement place in Florida. The legal agreement also provides financially for Beam's two brothers to receive a fair share upon the parents' death.

"We hired an agent to appraise the farm, and I paid that price with no gifting," Beam said of the transaction.

The purchase was financed with the help of FmHA (now Farm Service Agency) that required him to keep records, make projections, and budget. These requirements greatly benefitted him, and later on, enabled him to switch the loan to Farm Credit or to a local bank, a requirement of FSA.

Beam's parents carry the first lien on the farm. Beam said, "I'm not out of debt. My story is undergoing."

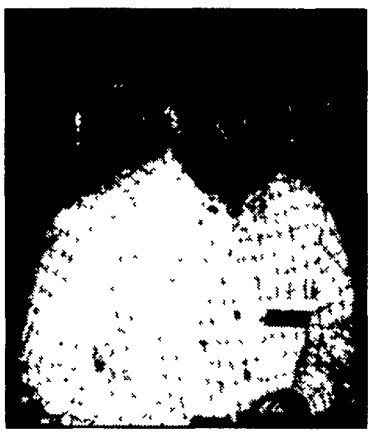
Bowlan said. "Ninety percent of farm transfer problems are caused by poor communication. It is important to include all spouses in discussions from the beginning stages of transitioning. Assume nothing. Get all agreements in writing. Expectations of each family member should be clearly stated. Utilize the best legal sources and accountants possible. Measure progress and review what is written, often."

Although guidelines exist that enable farm families to save taxes and ease transition, the workshop reinforced that no set rules apply in every situation. Decision-making in every incident is unique to each family's situation. Issues to take into consideration are the family's strong ties to the land and farm, and the willingness of each family member to look at the transition from several angles.

For some, preservation of farming as a way of life is more important than receiving top dollar.

In some instances, a multifamily agreement is set up. These need to be set up as a business to make it work and include a policy of the expectations for the next generation. Multiple owners greatly complicate decisions about transfer. Options should be discussed long before the transfer becomes effective.

It is important that the next generation has time to gain experience in management by gradually transferring responsibility for the farm operation.



Tim Fritz, multicounty farm management agent, stresses the importance of a business plan.

Bowlan believes it is important that children advance their education and work in another field or in the same field but for another farm operation.

"This enables the child to choose farming because they want to do so rather than because they have no other option," Bowlan said.

"Farming is tough business. We need our brightest and best. The more experience gained, the better prepared," she said.

"Talk out differences. Farm families are typically closed-mouth and busy. It's hard to get them to talk," Bowlan said.

Tim Fritz, multicounty farm management agent for southeastern Pennsylvania, approached the subject of business planning. Fritz grew up on a dairy farm and was part of a family partnership that dissolved, in part, Fritz said, because they didn't plan properly.

Through his experience, Fritz determined that three components are needed for a solid farming operation: production, business management, and marketing.

Fritz stressed the importance of a business plan. "If it doesn't work on paper, it probably won't work in reality," he said.

Estate planning and legal issues in a farm transfer were addressed by James R. Clark, attorney with the Lancaster County law firm of James Clark & Associates.

One of the questions farmers often ask is how much lawyer fees are charged to settle estates. Clark said a typical fee is five percent of the estate's value, but second quotes are recommended. A living trust still requires lawyer's fees, and it is easier to settle estates without trusts.

A session on financing revealed that special loans with low interest rates are available for beginning farmers. Three representatives shared potential help their organizations offer. Speakers included Marietta Myers, Next Generation Loan Program; Gerald Phillips, Mid-Atlantic Farm Credit; and James Tomanellil, Farm Service Agency.

Farmland Preservation Programs were explained by June Mengel, Lancaster County Ag Preserve Board and Heidi Schellenger, Lancaster Farmland Trust. The differences between these two organizations and the ways they can benefit estate planning have been addressed in previous articles in this paper. Farmers are encouraged to contact these organizations to see how these programs could benefit them as the financial benefit is dependent among many different issues.

For more information on farm transferrals or workshops, contact Farm Link, 2708-A N. Colebrook Rd., Manheim, PA 17545. Phone: (717) 664-7077.

"My father never really gave me money, he gave me opportunity," Beam said. He and his wife Robin are grateful for the opportunity to buy the family farm in Elverson.

'Rate Of Interest' In Preserving Farms Grows

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The county's farmland preservation waiting list may soon become shorter.

Officials from the State Bureau of Farmland preservations met with approximately 100 producers from Lancaster County to discuss the new, voluntary Installment Purchase Agreement (IPA) Program at the Farm and Home Center Wednesday evening.

Although more than 1,500 farms have been preserved across the commonwealth, 1,600 are on the waiting list. Two years ago, a pilot program was established to accelerate the rate of farmland preserved.

Working together to preserve farmland are, from the left, presenter Pat O'Connell, Evergreen Capital Advisers, Princeton, N.J.; June Mengel, director, Lancaster County Ag Preserve Board; and Raymond Pickering, director, bureau of farmland preservation, Harrisburg.

"The genesis of this program came from a realization in the department of agriculture that the capital gains tax can claim almost one quarter of the sale price when the landowner sells appreciated property," said speaker Pat O'Connell, Evergreen Capital Advisers, Princeton, N.J.

"This makes landowners reluctant to sell their easements if they wouldn't get enough money to make it worth their while."

The solution, said O'Connell, is the installment purchase plan.

The new IPA program should be popular with both parties.

In short, the advantage is that producers receive more than if they would get paid cash at closing. On the other hand, counties could leverage funds to buy more easements up front rather than over time when there are less farms available.

The program offers landowners capital-gains tax deferral. Producers can sell easements using agreements that defer all or part of the purchase price for up to 30 years.

The increase comes from the interest payment made until the principal is paid.

The second benefit is that the interest paid is not subject to federal or Pennsylvania state income tax.

Lastly, the seller can elect an installment method for reporting of capital gain from the sale. Capital gain from the installment sale may be deferred until the seller receives the purchase price.

The agreement is a contract between the New Garden General Authority and the property owner selling development rights. In the IPA, the Authority will pay the purchase price for an easement by the end of a period as long as 30 years. The landowner will be paid interest on the outstanding purchase price from agreement closing until the purchase price is paid to the seller.

"Counties could use state grants to buy acreage on treasuries to cover the payments due, and secure many IPAs with the treasuries. The county saves money up front, allowing it to reach a lot deeper into its waiting list — that every county has — of farmers who want to participate in these agreements," said O'Connell.

Counties put aside less up front, so the seller can get more interest from the investment done by the county.

Deferral of payment of the purchase price for up to 30 years is expected to allow counties to make as many as five times more purchases than could otherwise be made over the short term.

Questions Answered

Once the seller enters into the sale agreement, that interest rate is locked in as a minimum interest rate. If the rate increase between the time the offer is made and the day of closing, they will receive a rate based on the market immediately prior to closing.

In the deed the owner agrees to use or maintain the property for agricultural purposes.

Payment of interest would be twice a year until the purchase price is paid. The landowner can also receive cash as determined in the agreement.

The IPA has no effect on ownership of the property. The landowner is free to sell the property at any time under the terms of the deed of easement.

After selling the property the seller would continue to receive the interest payments due under the IPA. The IPA can be sold to an investor or given away after one year.

The purchase price of the easement is established at the time that the seller signs the deed of

Gelbvieh Sire Summary

RAPID CITY, S.D. — The 2001 Gelbvieh Sire Summary is available to cattle producers. This year's sumary features 1,129 progeny tested sires and 712 genetic indicator sires.

The Gelbvieh performance record database has nearly doubled in the past five years. With the increase in value based marketing the AGA continues to increase the number of sires with Carcass EPDs.

The Carcass Sire Testing Program has increased the amount of data included for sires each year. The Gelbvieh breed unveiled Carcass EPDs (carcass weight, ribeye, marbling and fat thickness) in the 1999 Sire Summary. The 2001 Gelbvieh Sire Summary features 553 sires with Carcass EPDs.

North Dakota Breeder On Simmental Board

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Roger Kenner, Leeds, a member of the American Simmental Association (ASA) Board of Trustees since 1997, has been elected Chairman of the Board, succeeding Jerry Ayers, Synder, Oklahoma.

Kenner owns Kenner Simmental Ranch, a 280-head cow/calf operation, which places breeding emphasis on solid red and black genetics with some Fleckvieh influence. Kenner's cattle, including bulls, females, embryos, semen, and planned matings, are marketed through private treaty sales.

A Simmental breeder for 25 years, he also produces and markets certified durum wheat.

During the last year of his first term as a trustee, Kenner served as ASA treasurer and as president of ASA Publications, Inc. He also served two three-year terms on the North Dakota Simmental Association (NDSA), including two years as president. The holder of a degree in Ag. Economics from North Dakota State University, Kenner was named NDSA Promoter of the Year in 1988. Kenner and his wife, Jeannette, are the parents of three children, two daughters and a son.

Preserving Farms

easement. If property value increase, no additional compensation will be paid.

The Process Begins

Since tax issues are different for every seller, landowners should get a financial adviser, attorney, accountant, or a combination, advised O'Connell.

The first step for an IPA is to set terms between the county and the seller. The purchase price is agreed upon, along with the amount of cash the seller will get up front.

The term of the IPA is then set. A longer-termed IPA will maximize benefits. An older landowner may not ever have to pay capital gains tax if the term is for 30 years, but would sign up for the program to lock in a the stream of revenue from the interest payments.

Federal regulations limit the county from setting the interest rate arbitrarily. Currently the 30-year IPA pays approximately a 5.7 percent interest rate.

The second step of the IPA is to insert the negotiate terms into standardized documents. The third step is to pay costs. For professional bond counsel and financial adviser and other authorities working on the agreement, the price tag comes to approximately $18,500.

In Lancaster the fee will be waived for the first 10 farms signed up, and in the future it may be partly paid by the county, as negotiated.

A standard set of documents and operating procedures aids in the speed of farmland preservation.

Old installment purchase agreements had a term limited to five years, so sellers still had to pay capital gains tax in the near term.

The purchase programs are also in place in Maryland, Virginia, and New Jersey counties.

USDA Removes Sheep From Farm

MONTPELIER, Vt. — The USDA, under the authority of the U.S. District Court, recently removed a flock of 233 quarantined sheep from a private farm in Vermont.

The sheep, imported from Belgium and the Netherlands in 1996, were placed under certain federal restrictions when they entered the country as part of USDA's scrapie control efforts.

In 1998, USDA learned that it was likely that sheep from Europe were exposed to feed contaminated with bovine spongiform encephalopathy. At that time, the state of Vermont, at the request of USDA, imposed a quarantine on these flocks, which prohibited slaughter or sale for breeding purposes.

On July 10, 2000, several sheep from the flock tested positive for a transmissible spongiform encephalopathy (TSE). TSE is a class of degenerative neurological diseases that is characterized by a very long incubation period and a 100 percent mortality rate.

Two of the better-known varieties of TSE are BSE in cattle and scrapie in sheep. Unlike BSE, there is no evidence that scrapie poses a risk to human health. Based on current testing methodology, there is no way to determine whether the sheep have BSE or scrapie.

On July 14, 2000, USDA issued a declaration of extraordinary emergency to acquire the sheep. This action was contested by the flock owners. A federal district court judge ruled in favor of USDA based on the merits of the case. The flock owners appealed to the Second Circuit Court requesting a stay, which was denied.

The sheep will be transported to USDA's National Veterinary Services Laboratories in Ames, Iowa, where they will be humanely euthanized. Tissue samples will be collected from the sheep for diagnostic testing.

The owners will be compensated for the fair market value of the sheep.

"While we understand this is a very difficult time for the flock owners, USDA has no choice but to take this decisive action based on the threat the sheep pose to the health of America's livestock nationwide," said Craig Reed, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. The current BSE situation highlights USDA's important role in safeguarding America's livestock from such devastating foreign animal diseases.

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension of Lackawanna County invites the public and area organizations to attend their Open House on Thursday, March 29 from 2 p.m.-8 p.m. The Open House will be held at their newly renovated offices on the Lower Level of the County Administration Building, which is located at 200 Adams Avenue in Scranton.

Visitors will be able to meet the educators who provide our community with the latest educational programs and materials from Penn State University. Visitors also can meet the Nittany Lion from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. attend the ribbon cutting at 4:30, and surf Penn State Websites, all while enjoying free refreshments, souvenirs, and door prizes.

The mission of Penn State Cooperative Extension is to extend non-formal outreach educational opportunities to individuals, families, businesses, and communities throughout Pennsylvania. Cooperative Extension education programs enable the Commonwealth to maintain a competitive and environmentally sound food and fiber system and prepare Pennsylvania's youth, adults, and families to enhance the quality of their lives and participate more fully in community decisions.

In Lackawanna County, Extension does that by providing free or low-cost services such as school enrichment materials for teachers; state registration training credits for child care providers; tips for better growing for gardeners, landscapes, and farmers; support materials to help human service agencies help their clients; and state certification training and food safety programs for food handlers.

For youth, Extension provides a low-cost, sleepover summer camp for members from age 8 to 19; state and national opportunities for older members; and after-school and at-home 4-H projects that can fit any family's schedule. Adults who want to help youth can choose from hundreds of fun project books that match their interests.

Penn State encourages persons with disabilities to participate in its programs and activities. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation or have questions about the physical access provided, please contact Terry Schettini at 963-6842 in advance of your participation or visit.

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — "They are holding me personally responsible for keeping foot and mouth disease out of Maryland," said Dr. Roger Olson, state veterinarian in Annapolis.

Olson spoke late last week at the annual Maryland Holstein Convention at the Four Points Sheraton in Hagerstown, Md. He was speaking as Secretary of Agriculture Hagner Mister's representative.

Olson noted the biggest risk for this country are travelers who are "bringing in uncooked meat products," he said, to international airports.

Beagles are out in force in airports. "One found a sausage at BWI the other day," he said.

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) is keeping full track of what is going on around the world.

"I don't want to depress you," he told about 360 association members and friends at the awards banquet. "But it's a serious situation."

Last time there was a serious problem with foot and mouth disease in the country was 1929.

Olson emphasized the efforts of many people to distribute the message about the importance of biosecurity on the farm.

At the convention banquet, with the theme, "Monumental Past, Victorious Future," several members were honored for achievements.

The 2000 Distinguished Service Award was presented to Charles and Judy Iager, Fulton, Md.

Land O'Lakes Completes Purchase Of Kraft Cheese Plant

MELROSE, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc. has completed the purchase of the Kraft Foods, Inc. cheese plant in Melrose, Minnesota. The terms of the acquisition were not disclosed.

The purchase agreement initially was announced Feb. 19. The plant will be owned and operated by Melrose Dairy Proteins LLC, a joint venture of Land O'Lakes and Dairy Farmers of America, Inc. (DFA). Officials said the two cooperatives will each hold 50 percent ownership in Melrose Dairy Proteins LLC, while current plant operations, staffing and service to existing customers and producers will continue, adding that plans are to further upgrade plant technology and tailor ongoing production to market needs.

Located at 1000 East Kraft Drive, the plant produces bulk cheese, which is shipped to other plants for further processing and packaging. As part of the agreement, Kraft will purchase a portion of the plant's output.

The plant purchases over one billion pounds of milk per year, and officials of Land O'Lakes and DFA said the decision to form the joint venture reflects a strong, shared commitment to the Upper Midwest dairy industry and a focus on market access for member milk.

"This is driven, in part, by our two organization's long-standing commitment to Upper Midwest dairying," said Jack Gherty, Land O'Lakes President and Chief Executive Officer. "This joint venture also illustrates our continued confidence in the ability of the Upper Midwest dairy industry to be competitive long-term. Our goal is to maintain and upgrade the region's dairy infrastructure, as well as to preserve market access for the region's dairy producers."

DFA President and Chief Executive Officer Gary Hanman said he is pleased to finalize the transaction and officially begin the new partnership. "This farmer-to-farmer action points to a bright future for the dairy industry in the Upper Midwest," Hanman said. "As cooperatives, DFA and Land O'Lakes are mutually committed to creating and preserving market access for our dairy farm families. This is incredibly important in a food industry that is undergoing dramatic change."

Land O'Lakes has been a long-term supplier of raw milk to the Melrose facility. DFA has significant milk supply in the region.

Kraft's manufacturing facilities in Albany and New Ulm, Minn., are not part of the transaction.

Land O'Lakes is a national, farmer-owned food and agricultural cooperative, with sales approaching $6 billion. Land O'Lakes does business in all fifty states and more than fifty countries. It is a leading marketer of a full line of dairy-based consumer, foodservice and food ingredient products across the U.S.; services its international customers with a variety of food and animal feed ingredients; and provides farmers and local cooperatives with an extensive line of agricultural supplies (feed, seed, plant food and crop protection products) and services.

DFA is the nation's largest dairy-farmer owned marketing cooperative. Last year, DFA marketed and processed more than 44 billion pounds of milk for its 24,000 dairy producer members in 45 states. DFA supplies milk to bottling and manufacturing plants that produce a complete line of dairy products and food components for consumers in the U.S. and around the world.

Kraft Foods, the nation's largest branded food company, is the North American food business of Philip Morris Companies Inc.

Switchgrass Provides Cattle Health Benefits

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff
ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Switchgrass can provide some good forage for grazing cattle particularly beef according to one USDA ARS animal scientist

In one sample conducted before Ag Progress Days in Rockspring last August a forage analysis of the variety Cave In Rock provided 19 percent crude protein and a very vegetative NDF of 65 percent according to Kathy Soder USDA ARS soil scientist

The switchgrass is very vegetative and quite palatable Soder said.

Purebred Angus beef from Penn State looked good in body conditioning from the pasture

If producers want to use the warm season grasses on pastured beef they still have to take a hard look at them said Soder to ensure the animals are doing well on pasture That includes hip bones rib cover, and how well and how much the animals are feeding

The past year was good with a hay yield of 4-5 tons per acre The switchgrass planted at Rockspring was five years old Though in some spots it was sparse with some leaf blotch one stand is 20 years old and still producing.

According to Jim Cropper NRCS national forage management specialist the switchgrass was no-tilled from a corn rotation The switchgrass should be rotated back to corn after a time to kill any tall fescue or quackgrass that could emerge

The switchgrass he said is very dominant and does well with its good moisture holding capacity Graziers should have the animals take the grass down to about six inches of stubble

The variety Cave In Rock was developed in Quicksand Ky Cave In Rock is noted for its adaptability to growing conditions found in the East especially the high humidity areas It grows best in years of average rainfall and temperature

Plants reach more than five feet at maturity Late maturing it grows best on fertile well-drained soils.

Don't Overgraze, According To Pasture Beef Producer

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff
ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Pasture beef producer Conrad Fisher recognized his worst enemy when it comes to grazing I am my greatest enemy he told about a dozen producers and agribusiness representatives the past summer at Ag Progress Days in Rockspring I didn t recognize when overgrazing was done

During the drought of 1999 pastures were grazed down too far But now the most beautiful color he said is green After the drenching rains of Hurricane Floyd in September 1999 In 48 hours they came back green he said They do come back

Fisher spoke at a Graziers Forum at Ag Progress Days in August in Rockspring

Using previous methods of caring for pastures and fields didn t yield many earthworms Fisher noted He said that in one field I can came back with enough earthworms to go fishing for the day

By restoring the grasslands of his farm in an 8-9 year period the work is allowing us to have some freedom to farm

Fisher who farms in the heavily populated area of Montgomery County near Philadelphia said his farm has been in the family since 1863 Some land is forest but a good deal is hay including a mixture of orchardgrass and timothy The Fishers also grow some sweet corn and pumpkins for a roadside stand

After speaking with Tim Fritz extension agent for the area at the Scholarships for college students funded by Merial Limited, Pfizer Animal Health, and PCA will also be presented.

Activities on Friday will include the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Performance-Tested Bull Sale, followed by sales of selected Angus and Simmental breeding cattle.

Cattle owned by junior members of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association will move in Friday evening and Saturday for shows on Saturday and Sunday. A sale of Shorthorn breeding cattle will also be conducted Saturday morning.

Other junior activities — Beef Skill-a-thon and Beef Quiz Bowl — will also be conducted Saturday. Spectators with or without agricultural experience are welcome to attend and observe any of the events.

One of the most inviting attractions throughout the Expo is the food that is available on site — especially the grilled rib-eye steak sandwiches for which the Cattlemen's Association is widely known.

Among the special attractions for those involved with beef or dairy production will be special Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and National Cattlemen's Association membership incentives.

The Expo concludes at 2 p.m. on Sun., April 1 with food served through this closing time. More information can be obtained from the Cattlemen's Association, 862 Webster Drive, State College, PA 16801 or by phone at (814) 238-5888.

A New Record at Pa Bull Test

A Black Simmental bull has obliterated the growth record for bulls on test at Penn State University. HWF Kris, owned by Haven Woods Farms of Stoneboro, Pa., gained an unheard of 6.32 pounds per day, each and every day of the 112 day test. The old record, set in 1991 by a Simmental bull from Laural Valley Farms in Ligonier, was 5.51 pounds of growth per day. This record setting bull and other Simmental bulls will be offered for sale at the Beef Expo sale the last Friday of March, March 30, at 11 a.m. at the Penn State Ag Arena. Simmental females will be offered for sale after the bull sale.

Beef Skillathon At Pa. Beef Expo

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Junior cattlemen, test your knowledge of the beef industry in the Beef Skillathon on Saturday, March 31 at the Pennsylvania Beef Expo, 8-10 a.m. in the Penn State Ag Arena.

A skillathon is an excellent opportunity for the junior cattlemen to become involved in challenging learn-by-doing activities. The competition will incorporate project skills and industry basics in a series of mini-learning stations with facilitators at each station.

The station facilitators will allow participants to test their own knowledge and abilities in areas such as identification of beef breeds, retail cuts, feed ingredients, quality assurance practices, food safety, EPD evaluations, and management decision making.

Each participant will have about five to 10 minutes at each station where he/she will be tested by multiple choice, matching or one on one communication with the station facilitator. The entire contest will take approximately 35 to 45 minutes to complete.

This contest is a great way to test your beef industry knowledge and learn important skills needed to be a successful cattle person.

Eligibility

- Individuals must be a Pennsylvania Junior Cattlemen's Association Member. 4-H and FFA members may join the PJCA for a registration fee of $5. This membership fee may be paid at the time of the contest registration.
- Registration will require name, address, and birth date.
- Each exhibitor may compete one time.
- Team members must register at the same time and compete simultaneously.
- Schools, clubs, and counties entering more than one team must also register and compete simultaneously.

The senior division includes competitors 16- to 21-years-old; and intermediates 12- to 15-years-old; and juniors 8- to 11-years-old.

County , club or school teams consisting of four members in one division are invited to participate. Awards will be announced immediately before the Beef Quiz Bowl Finals in the arena.

Registration will take place on site just prior to the contest. Registration sheets are needed only at the contest site. For large groups, it would be most helpful for a leader or group organizer to register the group at the PCA Headquarters table in the Ag Arena. Signs will be posted.

2001 Beef Quiz Bowl

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 2001 Pennsylvania Beef Expo Quiz Bowl will be conducted March 31. Any team of four junior cattlemen, 4-H or FFA members is invited to compete. The competition will be divided into two divisions: 14 to 21 (seniors) and 8 to 13 (juniors). All four team members must be of the same division with the exception that juniors may compete on the senior team, but seniors may not compete on a junior team.

The contest will have two parts. The first will be a series of questions directed to each team member individually. Each team member will be given four questions to answer for a total of 16 questions per team. Part two will involve 16 toss up questions where the question will be read and anyone from either team will have the opportunity to buzz in to answer the question.

If the question is not answered correctly, the opposing team will have the opportunity to answer the question. There will be a time limit on each question as well as on bonus questions to be given when three different team members answer questions correctly. Bonus questions must be answered by the team captain but can be arrived at by the entire team after a 20 second conference. There is no limit to the number of bonus questions to be given.

Questions for the most part, will be obtained from Beef Today, BEEF Magazine, Keystone Cattleman and Lancaster Farming, but may also be taken from various beef publications of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, Penn State University, Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and state breed organizations.

Topics will include: nutrition, genetics, reproduction, animal health, marketing and promotion, and breeds as well as the possibility of state and national organizations and people in the beef industry. State specific questions will include but not be limited to the state of Pennsylvania.

The committee reserves the right to make adjustments to the contest in order to conduct a successful quiz bowl competition. Call the Expo Junior Show Office with any questions at (717) 336-0553.

Pa.'s 28th Performance-Tested Bull Sale

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center wishes to announce that final preparations are being made for Pennsylvania's 28th performance-tested bull sale and the 12th annual Pennsylvania Beef Expo.

This, the largest exclusively beef cattle event held in Pennsylvania, is scheduled for March 30 through April 1 at the Ag Arena on the campus of the Penn State University.

The weekend's activities start off with the PCA banquet and annual meeting Thursday evening at 6 p.m.

The trade show will be open Friday, March 30 with the performance-tested bull sale set to start at 11 a.m.

The state's Simmental and the Angus female sales will follow, one after the other, at the conclusion of the bull sale.

There will be 67 performance-tested bulls offered for sale. The sale will start off with 38 Angus bulls. The top-indexing Angus is the fastest gaining Angus that recorded a 5.09 pound average daily gain through the 112-day testing period.

This bull, owned by Marlin and Steve Paul, is a full brother to the top-indexing and fastest-gaining bull in last year's testing program. These bulls were sided by PS Traveler 351 614, a previous performance-tested bull that recorded one of the top sired performance records of is contemporary group.

The second-highest Indexing Angus bull is the RR Traveler 5204 son consigned by Joe and Bobbi McMullen. This bull gained 4.86 pounds per day on test and has a great set of E.P.D.s.

The 21 Simmentals will be next in the sale order. The top-indexing Simmental has established a new record average daily gain for any bull ever tested in Pennsylvania's official performance testing program.

This polled, black, Simmental is a son of WAR Dynamite 620 and gained a tremendous 6.32 pounds per day through the 112 day test. He has a lifetime weight per day of age in excess of 4 pounds per day and recorded an adjusted 365 day weight of 1,493 pounds.

The second highest indexing Simmental is the STF Red Siege son consigned by Mylin Messick. This polled, solid red bull gained 4.46 pounds per day on test and recorded an adjusted yearling weight of 1,410 pounds.

The six Herefords cataloged will be the next offering starting with the high-indexing son of Sapp Ranch Hand 219 consigned by Eugene Sapp. This bull gained 3.83 pounds through the 112-day testing period.

The second highest gaining Hereford is the NJW Z17 Vaquero 25C son consigned by Frank Phoenix who gained 3.63 pounds per day on test.

The lone Charolais offered in the sale is a polled son of Oakdale Easy 8133P consigned by Ray Bratton. This bull posted very good performance with an average daily gain of 4.75 pounds per day on test and maintained the top lifetime weight per day of age, 4.15 pounds/day among the entire group of 74 bulls as well as the second highest adjusted 365 day weight of 1,503 pounds.

Finally, the red polled Limousin consigned by David and Lynda Miller will round out the fine consignment of performance-tested bulls.

The Simmental and then Angus female sales will follow the bull sale, as mentioned earlier.

Saturday's activities will include the Shorthorn show and sale, the Junior Quiz Bowl and Skill-a-thon competitions, junior cattle check-in, steer weigh-in and the junior heifer show.

Sunday morning the junior showmanship contest will begin at 8 a.m. with the junior steer show to follow.

Understanding Risk Management

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — "How can we operate successfully when we pay more for our feeder cattle than our fathers and grandfathers did, and receive relatively the same price for finished cattle?"

Does this question sound familiar? It is the most repeated question I hear from feedlot operators as I travel the state.

Management and efficiency are the first things that come to mind. And within those two areas, the new and improved technologies that are available to us - including improved vaccination programs, ionophores, implants, total mixed rations (TMR), improved cattle genetics and improved record keeping, to name a few.

Most of these technologies are aimed at producing more beef and beef of better quality with the same amount of inputs, or less (i.e. feedstuffs and drug treatments).

But there is another tool that sometimes gets overlooked when we think of ways to lessen the impact of price volatility in the cattle industry.

According to Kansas State research, the greatest variability in cattle feeding returns is accounted for by price risk. When broken down into percentages, return variability of feeding yearling steers was due to selling price (54 percent), feeder cattle price (25 percent), corn price (9 percent), and average daily gain and feed efficiency (5 percent).

Risk management is an important financial management tool for today's cattle feeding industry. There are several forms of risk management including: custom feeding (discussed on page 15), homegrown feeds, futures and options, and forward contracting.

The best use of homegrown feeds is one form of risk management (against feed prices) that most Pennsylvania cattlemen use and understand.

I do not profess to be an economist. My objective with this column is to increase awareness of risk management options and give producers an idea of how they work.

In this column, we'll deal with one of the more complicated forms of risk management — forward contracting.

First things first, before a producer can get involved with any of these forms of risk management (custom feeding, futures and options, and forward contracting) it is imperative that the cost of production be known with a high degree of accuracy. And it is important to record the past performance of the cattle fed in the feedlot, in order to realistically predict when the cattle will reach the targeted end point.

By definition, a forward contract is a legal, binding commitment that prices a specified product at a certain time, to be delivered to a specified place.

Whether it is feeder cattle or finished cattle, the buyer of the contract is looking to reduce price risk at market time by "locking-in" a price well ahead of the expected sale date.

Before deciding to forward contract, it is crucial that the seller determine the breakeven price for his cattle and decide on an acceptable rate of return. Lenders often look more favorably upon financing cattle operations where risk management tools such as forward contracting are used.

Typically there are no costs associated with forward contracts, but the feeder must deliver the cattle during the specified time period. This is why good records are important.

To do a forward contract, you will need to have an understanding of the following components:

- Futures market - the commodity market in Chicago for slaughter and feeder cattle that is most often used to establish a local price when forward contracting.
- Cash (or Spot) market - current price for a specific commodity in a specific market.
- Basis - the price difference between the cash market and the futures market at a specific time. This number reflects current local supply and demand conditions, freight between markets and marketing fees. Basis is seasonal and will change depending upon the months in question.
- Contract specifications - description of the cattle to be delivered under the terms of the contract agreement. Cattle not meeting these specifications may be subject to discounts, which may or may not be pre-established in the agreement.
- Delivery - the agreed upon time frame for delivery.
- FOB (Freight On Board) - FOB point of origin means the cattle are sold at the farm/ feedlot, etc. and the buyer pays the freight. FOB delivery point

Risk Management

means the cattle are delivered to a pre-specified point (feedlot, plant, etc.) and the seller pays the freight.

• Load lots - most forward contracts are based on a load lot or 40,000 lb. live weight. This is approximately one full trailer load, 40 animals or more. Numbers will vary depending on the weight of the cattle. Also, for feeder cattle contracts, the load lot must be made up of uniform cattle.

• Basis forward contracts consist of two main factors, futures price and the basis. These factors change constantly; therefore, the forward contract price fluctuates accordingly. Shopping for the best basis is just as important as selling to the highest bidder when selling on the cash market.

The basis contract is not complete until both the basis price and the futures price are determined. Comparing the contract basis with the five-year average basis helps you evaluate the contract.

• Price can be established immediately or sometime in the future. Typically, the price for the chosen futures market contract can be established any time until the last day of the month prior to the determined month of delivery. The optimal time to establish the settlement price is when the appropriate futures market price peaks.

However, the critical element of pricing a forward contract is based on your breakeven cost and acceptable return. Experts caution against becoming a speculator because holding out for the optimal may be risky.

Another factor to keep in mind when deciding whether or not to forward contract is transportation cost. With some forms of cash marketing, packers pay the transportation cost from the auction or feedlot to the plant. With forward contracting, cattle feeders typically pay transportation costs.

Some packers may waive the transportation cost for the forward contract. This is a negotiating factor you will want to agree on with the packer before signing the contract.

There are several reasons to consider forward contracting.

• Securing a buyer in advance

• Establishing a price in advance (limits downside price risk)

• May help meet requirements for financing

• Less initial capital required

• Take advantage of strong prices or good basis at a given time (and use the advantage for future marketings)

• Forces you to keep current on marketings.

There are also situations where forward contracting may not be the best alternative.

• Eliminates option of selling to other buyers

• Limits potential price increases (if locked in early on)

• Offered price does not meet profit requirements

• Cattle that fail to meet contract specifications could be subject to large discounts

• Production risk, if contract cannot be fulfilled

• Wide basis

There are advantages and disadvantages to consider with forward contracting. The most important things to remember are: (1) understand all the specifications required for the cattle and how the price will be adjusted if they are not met; (2) know the current market conditions (and basis); (3) calculate the breakeven for the cattle you are considering for contract; and (4) a forward contract is a legal contract and all terms should be clearly identified before you sign.

Forward contracting a load of cattle and maintaining another group in the feedlot for the cash market is one way to go. That way if you have a problem with the cattle targeted for the contract, you can still fulfill your contract with the other cattle because they are not committed.

This management tool is designed to manage risk for both the buyer and seller. Evaluate how using a form of risk management such as forward contracting (or custom feeding, futures and options) could help you meet your goals. Send your comments, questions, and suggestions for future columns via email wlandis@das.psu.edu.

Closing thought: Open the toolbox and use all the tools inside. To meet your objectives, use the right tool for the job. By relying solely on the handiest tool, the one you have always used, you may be overlooking an opportunity.

Review Of The First Year Of 'Blue Print For Success'

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — As many of you already know, the Penn State University Department of Animal Science and the Pennsylvania Beef Council have joined forces and developed a program of assistance to Pennsylvania cattle feeders.

For those of you unfamiliar with the program "Blueprint for Success for Feeding Quality Assured Cattle in PA," it was designed to help improve the profitability of cattle feeders here and to provide assistance to producers who are considering expansion.

I was hired in late February of last year to head up the program, which was developed by a committee of representatives from all aspects of the state's beef industry.

My goal is to visit every cattle feeder in the state, and on a one-to-one basis, evaluate aspects of the operation, working with you to identify areas for improvement. We are blessed in Pennsylvania with many talented industry people who have the expertise to help you be successful. My role is to be the liaison working for the producer.

• "What happens when I call Wendall to come out to my feedlot?"

I have developed a Blueprint checklist so we can analyze your operation, one aspect at a time, and personalize the program to meet the needs of the diverse spectrum of cattle feeders here.

Cattle feeding in Pennsylvania doesn't fit any one mold. Our diversity is, in fact, one of our strengths.

After the evaluation, I may offer suggestions and ask your permission to bring in another individual who specializes in an area you may need help with. This is a voluntary educational program, so you are not required to follow these suggestions; however, I do hope that you will consider them. Of course, all information we discuss about your operation is strictly confidential, and you, the producer, are in the driver's seat.

• "If I follow the Blueprint, am I going to get paid more for my cattle?"

This is the question I always hear first. The answer is not the one we like to hear, "Yes... by following the guidelines that are outlined in the program, you will avoid practices that cause your cattle to be discounted by the packer."

We would much rather hear this answer, "Yes... if you follow the plan, you will receive an additional premium of $1 or $2 per hundredweight for your cattle."

The key word we all love to hear is "PREMIUM." That seven-letter word lights up our faces more than free hats and cattle sticks at a trade show. I would love to be able to tell you that you will receive an outright premium for your cattle if you participate in the program. However, at this point in time, what I can tell you is we'll help you avoid the eight-letter word "DISCOUNT."

By learning and working together to produce quality cattle, we make a priceless contribution to the beef industry as a whole. It's time to start thinking about our roles in securing the viable future of our industry here, beyond looking at the short-term advantages.

As we move forward, packers will have to recognize the efforts of forward thinking cattle feeders and their superior cattle. Being ahead of the curve will pay off. As evidenced by other livestock sectors, there will come a time when certain practices will not be optional, but mandatory. And you will be there.

As I've visited feedlots, I've found record keeping is a major issue. Feedlots need to pay more attention to record keeping. Extremely tight operating margins, and consumer concerns about quality and safety, demand accurate record keeping as the key to success for all sectors of cattle production, especially as the industry moves toward source verification.

Documentation equals marketability. It also provides some liability protection.

• "But I've gotten along just fine with my limited records all these years..."

My response may sound harsh, but it's the truth, "Times are changing and so is the beef industry."

To quote from Ken Jordan, director of auctions for Jordan Cattle Auction in Texas, "The train is leaving the station, we better get on board, or we will be left standing at the station."

• "So what kind of records should I keep, and for how long?"

This is a frequently asked question. Most experts recommend keeping records for at least two years after marketing your cattle. Cow-calf producers should keep them a bit longer.

To keep accurate records, first of all, the cattle need to have ear tags for proper identification. Either put your own in, or if your cattle come with tags, they can be used. Observation and sorting are easier and more precise when you can identify a steer as the blue tagged #123, rather than the black, blaze-faced steer with the white spot on his left rear foot.

Maybe descriptions work for you, but how are you going to record information about that steer by his description?

Your record sheet will need to include the tag ID (in this case B123), treatment date, withdrawal date, diagnosis, temperature, product used, route of administration, dose, how many times treated, and treatment results. Your records should also include date placed on feed, incoming weight and health status, vaccinations, de-worming and implant dates and information as noted above.

If the packer calls and says there was a quality problem with one of your steers, and the hide is already off, how are you going to know which steer it was and more importantly, why you had the problem? You can't even begin to tackle the problem without records and identification.

In most cases, the ear tag would provide the packer a way to identify the steer so you would know which one was the dark cutter, for instance. Then you could look over the records to help determine why. Your records are the most valuable management tool on your farm.

Another aspect of the Blueprint program is Beef Quality Assurance. An advisory committee is developing a BQA Certification program for PA cattle producers.

• "Why should I become a BQA Certified Producer?"

There are four major reasons.

• The first is the obvious fact that we should all be working together to gain and secure consumer confidence. We should be doing everything in our power to assure a quality and safe product.

• The second is product accountability. The industry-wide trend from commodity to brand name recognition of beef has come about, in part, because consumers look for accountability. Like it or not, the consumer holds us accountable. Following BQA guidelines both protects us and holds us accountable for our part in the production of safe, quality beef.

• The third reason for becoming BQA certified is to make better business decisions with the use of good records. The record keeping allows the individual operator to determine which part of his production system may need adjustments or changes.

• Fourth, BQA is economical. The records you keep benefit the management economics of your enterprise, and it helps your lender understand what you're doing. In essence we're building economic value in our industry by using BQA to build consumer confidence that leads to greater demand for beef... which ultimately benefits everyone's bottom line.

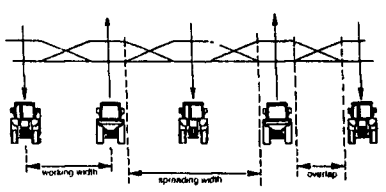
Spreaders are the most accurate broadcast spreaders in the world. The unique pendulum action keeps the spread pattern close to the rear of the machine while at the same time providing a symmetrical pattern on both sides.



The pattern allows "back and forth" as well as "around and around" operation. The "truncated" pattern offsets inaccurate overlap problems, eliminating streaking.

Vicon Seeder spreaders are easily calibrated for extremely accurate performance.

Rust free polyester hoppers, "DURA-COAT" enamel on painted components with stainless steel metering plates, precision adjustments, and a variety of spouts for a multitude of applications have earned Vicon Superflow seeder spreaders a world-wide reputation as the premier broadcast spreader.

Versatile Vicon spreaders band material in vineyards, orchards and nurseries, as well as spread lime, and salt and sand for winter use.

Southeast Regional Cattlemen's Association Meets

years ago, she recalled, a highlight of her senior year was winning first place in an essay contest sponsored by the Lancaster Newspapers Inc. It was all of 25 words on the advantages of Lancaster's new airport to the community. As winner, she participated in the airport dedication ceremonies and christened an airplane "The City of Lancaster." She also won a weekend trip for two to Atlantic City, N.J.

Her most significant achievement, Bunting said, is being a mother of four — three sons and a daughter — and grandmother of 10 — seven boys and three girls. She is looking forward to spending more time with them. Also, Bunting has four brothers and two sisters in Lancaster County, with quite a lot of nieces and nephews, all of whom get together at least twice a year.

Her professional achievements include being president of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America, now the National Association of Agricultural Journalists (NAAJ) in 1984 and member of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, 1984-1990, and its secretary from 1997-1990. She received the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association's Beef Industry Service Award in 1989.

Bunting has been a member of the Livestock Publications Council since 1990, serving on the board of directors from 1994-1996.

Bunting is a member of the McCaskey High School and Penn State Alumni associations. She admits to being a Penn State fanatic as well as a Mac (computer) fanatic. Other interests include knitting, playing bridge, and reading. The most recent book she's read is "A Charge To Keep," by George W. Bush.

nitely and reactivated for cell growth to allow the Wiles to reproduce Zita far into the future.

Ovaries from slaughterhouse cows provide the egg for the cell. This egg is emptied of its genetic information, the chromosomes. An electric shock fuses the cell with the egg. Within a few hours the embryo begins to divide. In seven days the cloned embryo is ready for transfer into a recipient cow.

The embryos were shipped overnight to the farm and implanted in the prepped cows and heifers.

"For the first one we probably overdid it a little, we had probably 40 cows in heat for 10 embryos," said Wiles. Ultrasounds were conducted at 35, 70, 90 and 120 days. "They're not out of the critical stage in cloning until 120 days."

The calves were born Feb. 7 and 13 at the New Bolton Center. Since their assisted delivery, the calves have been under close watch.

After being monitored for three weeks after their birth, they came home to Williamsport — the first cloned calves to be returned to the farm, according to Wiles. Although other cloned animals were born earlier, they are still in the laboratory.

Cloning Considerations

"The cloning industry is in its infant stages, there's only a handful of registered Holstein calves and one registered bull. The neat part about cloning dairy animals is that we can see the production comparisons.

"We had Zita production tested and evaluated for type by the Holstein Association, so when these mature and calve in we'll be able to compare type or milk production per year and see how close they really are."

More calves are expected in August and another seven embryos were put in last week. To get Genesis and Cyagra, 12 embryos were transferred.

Because this is cutting-edge technology, the price tag may be prohibitory for widespread use. Figuring in the cost for scientists to develop the embryo, the expense for care of the recipients, and fee at New Bolton for delivery, care, and bloodwork, Genesis and Cyagra come with a price tag of between $40,000-$50,000 apiece, approximates Wiles.

In coming years, said Wiles, cloned embryos will be more widely used in America and even shipped overseas as producers gain the technology and experience of transferring the embryos themselves without scientists and laboratories, keeping costs lower.

"There's a lot of activity around the country to get cows signed up, especially older cows. Producers can preserve cells now and work on cloning later if, five to ten years down the road, costs decrease, and they can look at that a little more."

The cloning option was especially appealing to the Wiles because Zita did not flush well. "There's still a gigantic pile of embryo contracts not fulfilled," said Wiles, who is hoping the clones step in and fill the gap that she left.

"These calves can start where Zita left off — expand on what she did through her daughters.

Cows are not going to live forever and this is a way of preserving her for additional time. The calves are a carbon copy of what made Zita so good. The big thing now is keeping everything else the same," said Wiles.

Although Zita has five generations of family behind her, her older genetics are still valuable, maintains Wiles. "I don't know how much more I can improve on, it's just a family that is so consistent on type — they stamp it for generations."

When the sheep "Dolly" was first cloned, experts feared that the lambs would mature at the speed of their "old" DNA, as DNA strands break off at the ends with age. However subsequent studies have revealed that clones have an extension on their DNA which allows for more normal development.

Other applications of cloning may be for endangered species. Cyagra also assisted in the birth of a gaur ox calf which was carried by a surrogate cow and born healthy.

A Royal Family

The Wiles bought the original Zita as an unborn choice of a flush from a Massachusetts farm. She was born April 27, 1991. "They called and said she had really long legs and was tremendously big and framey. We said we didn't even need to wait for the other two, we would take her," he said.

In 1993 Zita began calving and distinguishing herself among the Holstein breed. Of her first two daughters, Futuraland Tesk Zanadu is the number one CTPI cow of the breed and Astar Zenith is the dam of the top bull in Canada for type.

Zanadu also has cells in the laboratory. She already has one confirmed pregnancy from a cloned embryo and the Wiles have another 15-20 transfers to make on her.

"It just keeps progressing," he said. Four generations, starting with Zita, scored 89 points as 2-year-olds, which has never been accomplished before, believes Wiles.

Zita had a lifetime production of 1611 days of 108,990 pounds of milk, with a 5.1 percent fat and 3.9 percent lifetime protein.

Scored Excellent at 94 points, she was once ranked number one Holstein for CTPI. In the fall of 1995 she ranked number two, with two daughters, Zenith and Zanadu, following at numnbers three and four CTPI. Currently 11 of the top 46 CTPI are direct descendants of Zita.

She was also has records to 39,620 pounds of milk.

Seeing Double

Unfortunately Zita broke a vertebra, was paralyzed, and passed away Friday, March 2, before the calves arrived at the farm. Approaching ten years old, she was still in good health. The Wiles family is enjoying watching for similarities between Zita and the calves.

"Zita was dominant and it will be interesting to see what will happen when they get older," said Wiles. "They probably both won't pick on each other but take on the rest of them."

Since markings are 90 percent determined by heredity and 10 percent by the recipient carrier, the calves do not look exactly alike, or exactly like Zita. A chemical washes over the fetus while it is in the womb, which may change the look of the calf. Both calves exhibit Zita's characteristic long legs, tall, framey build, and head more wide at the top.

The calves are showing the same voracious appetite of Zita, 2,300 pounds as a 9-year-old. "They're always nibbling. We already had to put long-stemmed orchard grass in, which we don't usually do until the calves are three months of age."

Wiles plans to keep approximately three Zitas in the herd. "The kids can see Zita as a calf, how she grew up," he said.

A Family Operation

The family has been in the dairy business since 1964, when Charles and Martha began to farm. Their son Greg came back from the University of Maryland in 1986 to take over the breeding program.

Greg and his wife, Becky, have three children: Ryan, 14, Eric, 10, and Rachel, 5. Becky helps with the milking along with Greg's sister, Melissa, who also holds a job off of the farm.

Charles is in charge of repairs and crops while Greg takes care of cow management and feeding. The farm encompasses 200 acres owned by the Wiles family and an additional 100 acres rented for pasture. They milk 110 cows.

Greg Wiles was recently awarded the national Junior Chamber of Commerce's Outstanding Young Farmer Award. He traveled to Nebraska a week after the calves arrived with his son to receive the award. Wiles was selected because of the farm's soil and water conservation practices and his own progress in agriculture and for contributions to his community, state, and nation.

Gov. Ridge Announces Resignation Of DEP Secretary Seif

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Tom Ridge has announced the resignation of James M. Seif, Secretary of Environmental Protection, effective March 31. Seif will become vice president of Corporate Services for PPL Corp., headquartered in Allentown, Lehigh County.

Gov. Ridge said he expects to announce his nominee to replace Seif prior to his March 31 departure. That nominee will serve as acting secretary pending his or her Senate confirmation.

"Jim Seif was my clear choice for Secretary of Environmental Resources when I began my Administration in 1995, and his work during the last six years demonstrates I was right," Gov. Ridge said. "Three of my administration's greatest accomplishments — Land Recycling, Growing Greener and Growing Smarter - would not have been possible without his advocacy and guidance.

"Under his extraordinary leadership, DEP has made great strides working with many partners to protect and restore our watersheds, to prevent pollution before it occurs, and to share information with communities and ask for their input.

"Jim drove home the message that environmental protection and economic prosperity are intertwined. He has helped to forge Pennsylvania's environmental vision for the 21st century. I wish Jim well as he embarks on his new endeavor, and I thank him for his service and commitment to Pennsylvania's environment — and to the many Pennsylvanians, now and in the future, who will benefit from the cleaner, greener environment he helped to make."

Seif guided the Department of Environmental Resources through a split into the departments of Environmental Protection (DEP), and Conservation and Natural Resources (DCNR). In 1995, Gov. Ridge signed into law legislation reorganizing the state's environmental agencies for the first time in 25 years - to focus more attention on the needs of state parks and forests in a new DCNR, and to enable a new DEP to concentrate on its mission to protect the environment.

In 1998, Seif co-chaired the Governor's 21st Century Environment Commission to identify environmental priorities for the new century. The commission's report led to the creation of the nearly $650 million Growing Greener initiative, signed into law by Gov. Ridge in December 1999, making the single-largest environmental investment in Pennsylvania's history. Growing Greener, in its second year now, is preserving open space and farmland, reclaiming abandoned mines, restoring watersheds, maintaining state parks and forests, and upgrading water and sewer systems.

Seif's work on the commission also led to the development of the Growing Smarter initiative to give communities new tools to manage growth, while protecting private property rights; to allow communities to plan jointly; and to require state agencies to consider local land-use plans and ordinances in making permit and grant decisions.

Pennsylvania's award-winning Land Recycling Program, created under the Ridge Administration, has resulted in the cleanup of more than 800 sites, with 25,000 people at work on former industrial properties.

Other initiatives include the Money Back Permit Guarantee that provides timely decisions on permit applications; creation of the first online Environmental Compliance Tracking System (eFACTS) in the nation to give the public for the first time access to compliance information on individual facilities, by program and by geographic area; and the creation of the Office of Pollution Prevention and Compliance Assistance to help businesses, local governments and the public understand, comply with and go beyond environmental regulations to achieve a goal of zero pollution.

Prior to his appointment by Gov. Ridge, Secretary Seif was Counsel to the Philadelphia law firm of Dechert Price Rhoads, which he joined in January 1989.

Seif began his legal career in 1971 in Pittsburgh with the U.S. Department of Justice as an assistant U.S. attorney, where he handled some of the nation's earliest environmental cases. He also served as administrative assistant to Gov. Dick Thornburgh, and as a regional administrator for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

A native of Pittsburgh, Seif attended Yale University and the University of Pittsburgh School of Law.

Seif lives in Blue Bell, Montgomery County, with his wife, Patricia, and two daughters.

Northeast Order Uniform Price For February 2001

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, Market Administrator for the Northeast Marketing Area, has announced that the statistical uniform price paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order for February 2001 is $13.62 per hundredweight ($1.17 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston).

The February statistical uniform price is $13.52 for delivery to plants in New York, N.Y., and $13.42 for delivery to plants in Philadelphia.

The statistical uniform price is the benchmark minimum producer blend price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks and by the location of the plant(s) to which the farm's milk is delivered.

Mr. Rasmussen also stated that the producer price differential (PPD) for February is $3.35 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool on a hundredweight basis.

The PPD, which is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components, is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant. The statistical uniform price and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the more distant the plant receiving producer milk is from Suffolk County, Mass.

The Class prices for milk pooled in February are as follows: Class I, $15.19 (Suffolk County, Mass.); Class II, $13.43; Class III, $10.27; and Class IV, $12.70. Comparable prices for February 2000 were: Class I, $13.96; Class II, $11.51, Class III, $9.54; and Class IV, price $10.80.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 1.898 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 43.3 percent of producer milk receipts. The average Class I utilization was 41.3 percent in February 2000.

Cross-Country Quilters Stitch Artsy Quilts

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "I can't think of anyone who comes through these doors who wouldn't be impressed, no matter what their age." said Sally Carpenter about the 14th annual Quilters' Heritage Celebration.

About 16,000 people attended the show March 15-18 at the Lancaster Host Resort and Conference Center.

Although the quilts on display attract the attention of the crowds, Hetty Wengert, Lebanon, said, "They like to see the quilts, but they'd be lost without the vendors. They want to see what's new on the market."

What's new on the market is inconceivable unless you've browsed the merchant's mall, which is part of the annual show. The techniques and gadgets to create works of beauty can inspire even the most untalented fiber artists.

In addition, free workshops offer sewing lessons and instructions in machine quilting.

Jason Pollen, quilt juror, said, "What strikes me deeply is the overwhelming number of quilts that embody a strong point of view, both visually and conceptually. Sometimes humorous, sometimes profoundly introspective, sometimes somewhere in between, the marjority speak, sing, shout or whisper with individual voices."

The most unlikely subjects — such as cars, animals, people, profiles, and fashions — are often incorporated into the quilt designs.

The stories that accompany antiques are often as fascinating as the items themselves. One display of antique quilts included the story of a woman who refused to let her husband sleep beneath a quilt pattern called Wandering Foot for fear he would run off. However, she felt safe when she renamed the quilt Turkey Tracks.

Renaming a quilt pattern is part of the reason the same quilt pattern varies in name from area to area.

"Come, you must see this," are the most often overheard words spoken with a sense of awe while more than 16,000 visitors crowded the exhibition area.

The Lancaster show is rated as one of the top five quilt shows in the world.

Rita Barrow Barber, producer, said, "In celebrating the quilt, we learn, share, and enjoy the splendor of expression shared by so many quilters."

Before the 1970s, Barber said, artists who used fabric to create works that were pieced, layered, stitched, and stuffed were not accepted in traditional quilt shows. Instead they needed to display their art quilts in mixed-media fiber shows, which dampened their impact. In the 1970s, several volunteers preserved an abandoned dairy barn to display 20th century creations in Athens, Ohio.

Quilt National was intended to demonstrate the transformations taking place in the world of quilting.

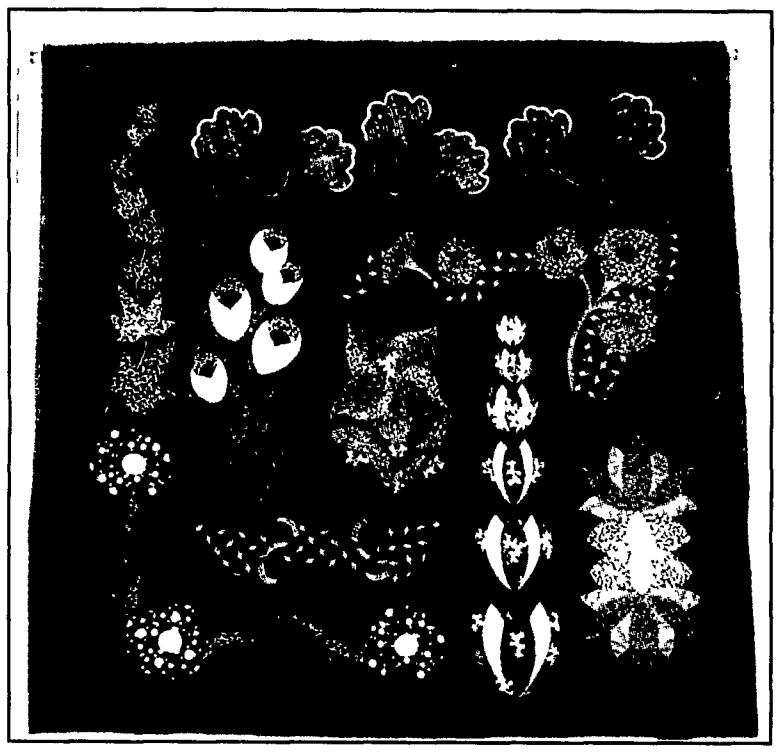
"It's purpose was then, and still is, to carry the definition of quilting far beyond its traditional parameters and to promote quilt making as what is always has been — an art form," Barber said.

The plan is to hold fast to the traditional methods of piecing and patching but utilize the newest materials and technologies for innovative work.

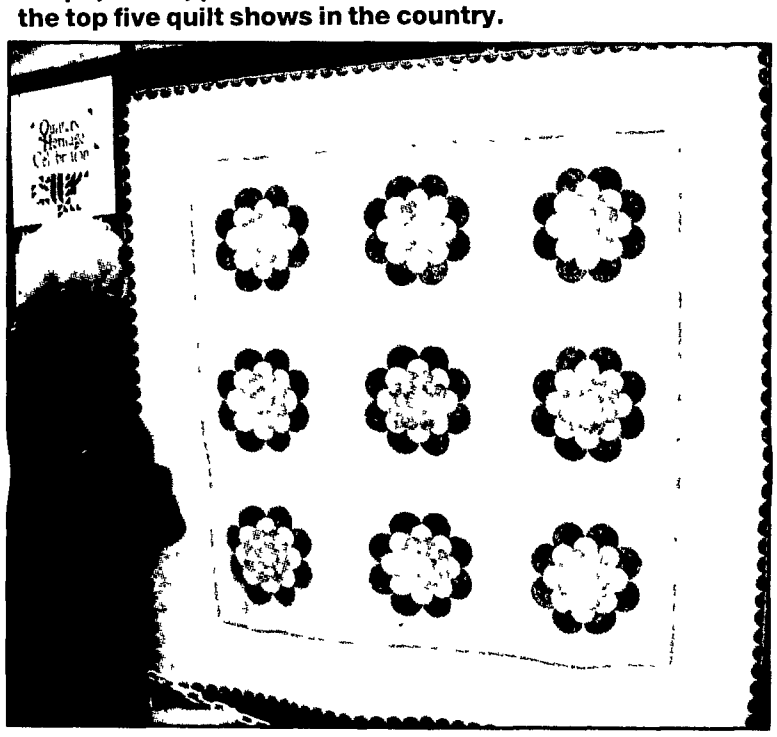
The stiff entry requirements state that works must possesss the basic structural characteristics of a quilt, be predominantly fiber, and composed of at least two full and distinct layers held together with stitches. Work must be original by the entrant, not a copy of a traditional design nor a variation of that of another artist.

Preliminary acceptance for the juried show is gained by submitting two slides of the original quilt, one showing the full view of the quilt and the other detail of the front. However, the work is not accepted for the show until seen by a jurors' representative.

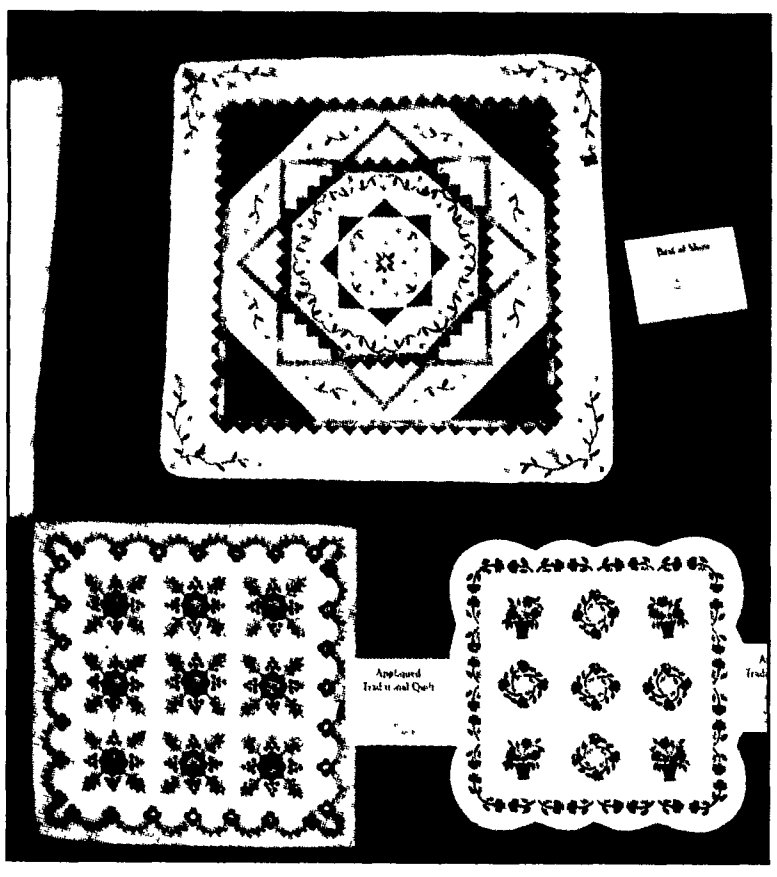
The next Quilters' Heritage Celebration is scheduled for April 4-7, 2002.



Quilters' Heritage Celebration holds fast to traditional methods of piecing and patching but utilizes the newest materials and technologies for innovative work. In the pictorial quilts competition, this "Garden Variety" by Marcia Krupe, Mich., placed first. The juried show is rated one of the top five quilt shows in the country.



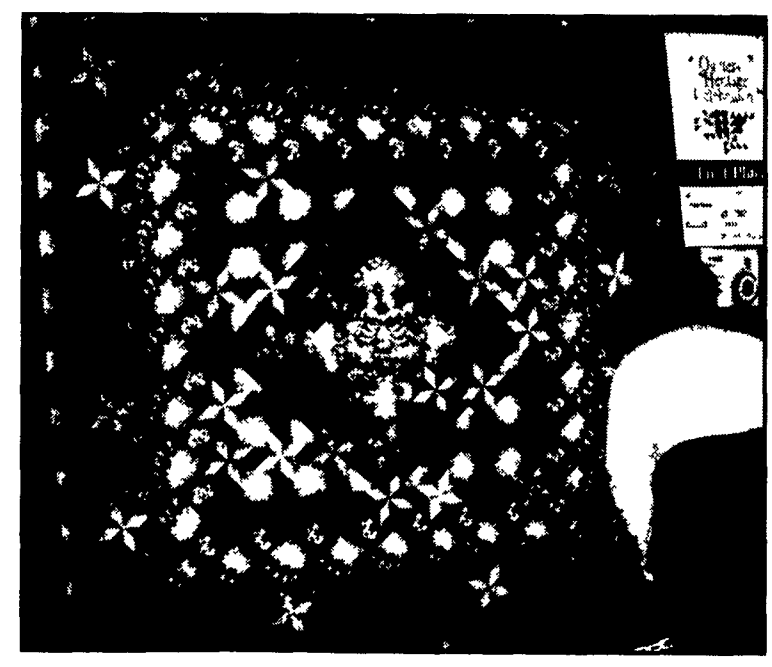
Best workmanship went to Jen Lohmar, Illinois, for Pride of Prairie. The tiny stitches enhance the pattern and show how quilting is an artistic design in itself.



These prize-winning miniatures feature the equisite detail of full-size quilts. Best-of-show miniature, "Golden Melody," was stitched by Cheryl Kagen, W. Seneca, N.Y. "Summer Rubies" by Nancy Wagner Graves, and "A Bit of Sunshine" by Marie Moore, Houston, Texas.

Fiction in quilting? That's exactly what Jennifer Chiaverini offers with three novels she has written and had published by Simon & Schuster.

"Flaming Flowers Brightly Blaze" is a three-dimensional quilt by Robin Haller, Illinois.



"Moody Hues" in shades of blue shows many different quilting techniques designed by Candy Groff, Montana.

Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Club Holds Recognition Banquet

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Club recently held its annual recognition banquet. Among the honored guests were buyers from the livestock sales and senior members.

The banquet was led by master of ceremonies, Justin Fuls, a member of the beef and swine clubs. Other participating members included Heather Emrich, Andrew Blatt, Travis Adam, Emily Wenger, and Holly Meyer.

All of the livestock leaders were honored, as well as the buyers from the Lebanon Area Fair, the Winter Roundup and the Pennsylvania Farm Show. The buyers are invited to the annual banquet and presented with a gift.

The leaders of the three livestock clubs recognized the winners from the past year. For the hog club, Brenda Crouse and Dan Seaman presented roundup trophies to roundup champion Janine Winebark, reserve champion Brandon Winebark, as well as showmanship trophies to the two Winebarks plus Hannah Artz. Brandon Winebark was also recognized for showing the grand champion market hog at the 2001 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Seniors honored at the banquet were Andrew Blatt, Travis Adam, Justin Fuls, Heather Emrich, Holly Meyer, and Emily Wenger.

Brian Kreider, beef club leader, also recognized the winners from his club. Kreider also coaches the livestock judging team.

The highlight of the year was their win at the Cattail Classic in Maryland. Competing against teams from various states, they easily won every category in this contest.

Debbie Tice of the sheep club recognized the many participants from the past year. The roundup champion Joseph Tice and reserve champion Susan Leed also received their trophies. She also thanked fellow leaders Tim Fleener, Wilmer Wenger, Daryl and Michelle Grumbine, and Julie Willard for their assistance.

Members who are seniors in high school were recognized. The seniors were Justin Fuls, Travis Adam, Andrew Blatt, Heather Emrich, Emily Wenger, Holly Meyer, and Nathan Spatz.

Extension agent Galen Kopp recognized the outstanding members. The members apply for this award, listing their accomplishments for the past year. Unfortunately, there were no applicants for the rookie award, and Kopp encouraged everyone to apply next year. The outstanding junior member was awarded to Emily Whitmoyer. Emily is a member of the beef club, as well as North Mountain Club, and shows both breeding animals and steers. She also participated in many school and church activities as well.

The outstanding senior member was awarded to Nathan Tice. Nathan is a member of the beef, sheep and swine clubs as well as the livestock judging team. He was reserve champion beef blocker and beef showman at the Lebanon Area Fair, as well as showing the champion Shorthorn steer at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. He also participates in the Northern Lebanon FFA Chapter.

In the closing comments of the evening, several people were recognized. The Ken Winebark family is leaving for mission work in late March. Ken is a former extension agent, and this past year was organization leader for the Swine Club. His wife Janet, and children Janine and Brandon will all be part of the mission trip, which will take them first to Texas.

Emily Whitmoyer received the outstanding junior member award while Nathan Tice won outstanding senior member honors.

Also mentioned was former county extension director Alletta Schadler. She and her husband Bill are currently living close to Johns Hopkins Medical Center in Baltimore after she donated a kidney to her husband, who had been on dialysis for several years.

Finally, former organization leader of the Swine Club, Judy Atkins was honored for her 15 plus years of service. Although she stepped down from that role about a year ago, she has continued to do the computer work of entering classes for the fair. Judy has seen many 4-H'ers through the program, including some who are now leaders, such as Brian Kreider, John Risser and Daryl Grumbine.

Ode To March Mud

Dark and gloomy, drizzly day
Fog rolls up from meadow way.
Seems forever here to stay...
Mud.

Harbinger of late-March weeks.
Passage to the house it seeks
Sometimes in our boots it leaks.
Mud.

Spring's warming thaws the freeze away
So April's rain grows flowers in May.
Meanwhile, we mop this mess away...
Mud.

In it our livelihood is found
This dark, rich earth, this precious ground.
Just now, a little moisture-bound,
Mud.

Beloved by our waterfowl
The geese and ducks moved in for now,
They seek out puddles, in they file...
Mud.

It nurtures hosts of polliwogs
Which hatch in countless soggy bogs,
And grow up into fat, green frogs.
Mud.

We roll it, grade it, stone it, too,
So tractors keep on putt-ing through
This sticky stuff, this gloppy goo...
Mud.

Cows seems to know exactly where
To coat it thickest on their hair...
...where we want to put the milker there.
Mud.

Those who most embrace its joys
Are gleeful little girls and boys
Who'd rather slop, than play with toys,
In mud.

They cook up pies and cakes and such
With sticks and stones for festive touch:
"See, Mommy, what I made for lunch!"
Mud.

Our house is boasting tracks galore
From endless feet across the floor
Good grief! I have to mop some more.
Mud.

By mid-July, when heat's our norm
And drought starts flirting with fields of corn
We might start praying for a thunderstorm
And mud.

So yank on boots and grab a kid
To dance and play and run through it,
These puddles scattered out amid
This mud.

Before moisture depreciates
I'll try to not so fixate
But, rather, quite appreciate
March mud.

Raising Good Eaters Can Be Fun!

Good nutrition is important at all ages. However, at a very young age, eating patterns and habits can be established. Children learn by example, so set an example by eating right.

When children are growing, they need vitamins and minerals and healthy foods to grow properly. Eat with your child and provide a variety of healthy foods.

The parent/adults responsibility is to serve healthy food at specific times and regularly. It is the child's job to decide whether to eat or not and how much. Ellyn Satter from her book "Child of Mine Feeding with Love and Good Sense."

Serve the right amount of food at appropriate times. Try to provide children their food at the same times everyday. Children have little stomachs and need to eat about every two to three hours. Snacks can be a very important part of the food they eat to grow.

Children should have food from the food guide pyramid at all times. Healthy food that is needed includes whole grains, fruits and vegetables, dairy foods, lean meats, nuts, beans, legumes, eggs, poultry and fish.

There is no good or bad food. However, children need vitamins and minerals for growing. Because children eat less than adults, it is essential they get what they need. Extra foods should be limited, including foods high in fat, salt and sugar. Children will be robbed twice if they eat candy, for example. The candy would give extra calories and fill the child.

If the child ate an orange instead, the child would get vitamin C and many other good things. However, when the child eats empty calories such as candy, soda, etcetera, he or she will not have room for what he or she needs to grow.

To encourage young toddlers to eat; serve some finger foods and familiar foods. This way they can have some foods that are easy to eat and some foods that require the use of the utensils and provide some challenge.

Here is a fun recipe to try with your children:

Fruit Kabob Recipe
Sliced bananas
Sliced strawberries
Cubed cheese
Pretzel sticks

Poke the pretzel sticks through the fruits and cheese chunks.

Tip: Include the child by giving them a plate with one of each item. Allow the child to choose what to eat alone and what to put together!

Enjoy a healthy snack!

When feeding children, always avoid choking foods, such as hard candy, nuts, grapes, coarsely cut meats, raw carrots, apples, and popcorn.

Don't get too caught up in evaluating your child's diet. Do not worry about it.

Pay attention to whether he or she seems energetic and is growing well.

Enjoy your kids, they are only small once.

Five Ways To Encourage Good Eating For Preschool-aged Children

1. Provide meals and snacks at appropriate times.
2. Provide some finger food at each meal or snack.
3. Provide a variety of foods, especially fruits and vegetables.
4. Serve some familiar foods with new foods.
5. Serve healthy foods every few hours. Healthy foods include; lean meats, dairy products (low-fat over age 2), whole grains and fruits and vegetables.

Prepare a crockpot of Two-Way Shredded Beef from which you can serve the following delicious sandwiches. Recipes are from the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

TWO-WAY SHREDDED BEEF

3 to 3¼ pound boneless beef chuck shoulder or bottom round roast, cut into four large chunks
1 medium onion, quartered
3 whole cloves garlic, peeled
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup water

In slow cooker, place onion and garlic; top with beef chunks. Sprinkle beef with salt and pepper; add water. Cover and cook on LOW 9 to 9 ½ hours or until beef is tender. No stirring is necessary during cooking. Remove beef from cooking liquid; cool slightly.

Meanwhile, strain cooking liquid; skim off fat. Set aside. Trim and discard excess fat from cooked beef. Shred beef with two forks. Divide shredded beef evenly in half (approximately 3¼ cups per portion); add ¼ cup reserved cooking liquid to each. Use on portion shredded beef to prepare Tex-Mex Beef Wraps with Tomato-Corn Salsa or Honey Mustard BBQ Beefwiches. Cover and refrigerate remaining portion up to four days for later use. (See following recipes.) Makes approximately seven cups shredded beef.

Cooks Tip: Beef mixture may be frozen in a covered container; defrost before using.

TEX-MEX BEEF WRAPS WITH TOMATO-CORN SALSA

3¼ cups Two-Way Shredded Beef
16 ounces prepared thick and chunky salsa
two tablespoons chopped cilantro
4 (10-inch diameter) flour tortillas, warmed

Tomato-Corn Salsa

½ cup frozen whole kernel corn, defrosted
1 small tomato, chopped
1 tablespoon chopped cilantro

In small bowl, combine Tomato-Corn Salsa ingredients with two tablespoons prepared thick and chunky salsa; cover and refrigerate until ready to use.

In slow cooker removable crock or 1½-quart microwave-safe dish, combine one portion shredded beef, remaining prepared salsa and two tablespoons chopped cilantro. Cover and microwave on HIGH seven to eight minutes (eight to nine minutes from the refrigerator) or until hot, stirring once.

Spoon ¼ of beef mixture (scant one cup) evenly over each tortilla, leaving 1½ inch border on all sides. Top each with approximately ¼ cup Tomato-Corn Salsa.

Fold right and left edges of tortilla over filling; fold bottom edge up, then roll up jelly-roll fashion. Garnish with additional chopped cilantro; serve immediately.

Makes 4 servings.

HONEY MUSTARD BBQ BEEFWICHES

3¼ cup Two-Way Shredded Beef
1 cup honey mustard barbecue sauce hamburger buns or kaiser rolls, split chopped green bell pepper (optional)
chopped sweet onion (optional)

In slow cooker removable crock or 1½-quart microwave-safe dish, combine one portion shredded beef and barbecue sauce; mix thoroughly. Cover and microwave on HIGH five to six minutes (six to seven minutes from refrigerator) or until hot, stirring once.

Place equal amounts of beef mixture on bottom half of each bun. Top with bell pepper and onion, if desired. Close with top half of bun.

Makes four sandwiches. Any flavor barbecue sauce may be substituted for the honey mustard barbecue sauce.

Slow Cooking For Fast Eating

You're away for the day. But when you come home, the family is waiting for dinner. They're hungry. You're hungry and tired — too tired to prepare a meal.

With a bit of forethought, you can easily prevent this dilemna by preparing a crockpot meal. Slow cooking during the day enables you to serve a nutritious meal fast. Here are some tips for successful slow cooking

Cooking Basics

• Slow cookers are available in many sizes; the 3 -, 4- and 5-quart (with convenient removable crockery or stoneware liners) are the most popular. For best results, manufacturers recommend that the slow cooker be filled at least half full, but never more than three-fourths full.

• Cooking times are guidelines; each slow cooker varies, and power fluctuations may occur. Follow recipes to determine whether to cook on LOW or HIGH setting.

• Do not remove lid during cooking as this can result in heat loss. Lift the lid only when it's time to check for doneness or stirring is recommended.

• In high altitudes, cooking may take longer.

• Do not reheat foods in the slow cooker.

Foods In The Cooker

• Ingredients can be taken directly from the refrigerator and placed in the slow cooker.

• Purchase beef roasts or other large cuts in a size and shape that fit easily into the cooker; otherwise trim them to fit.

• Fresh vegetables tend to cook slower than meat. Place vegetables on the bottom and around the side of the cooker; place meats on top.

• Trim visible fat from beef prior to placing it in the cooker to reduce fat in the finished dish.

• Usually only small amounts of liquid are added to the slower cooker because liquid accumulates from foods during cooking.

CROCKPOT BREAD PUDDING

8 slices bread, cubed
4 eggs
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup butter, melted
2 cups milk
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup raisins, optional

Place bread in greased crockpot. In bowl, mix beaten eggs, sugar, butter, milk, and cinnamon. Stir until smooth. Stir in raisins. Pour over bread and mix. Cook three hours on low. Set lid aside and let mixture steam so that pudding doesn't get watery.

1 can golden mushroom soup
1 can cheddar cheese soup
1 can onion soup

4-H HAPPENINGS

Don Guanella
4-H Gardeners

Fifty-five students at Don Guanella School have been taking part in a series of six 4-H indoor gardening lessons.

Through these "hands-on" activities, the students are learning various methods of plant propagation, plant parts, plant identification, and the care of a variety of indoor, outdoor and seasonal plants.

The students in Helene McCune's class with the help of Fred Grant, Miss Rose and Miss Aisha decorated a Christmas tree in their classroom with ornaments made out of all natural materials.

For their efforts, they were awarded ribbons and small prizes from Delaware County 4-H.

Those students participating were Maria Bey, John Briddes, Joshua Clift, Tahmir Craig, Shaquan Cruz, Jabree Cruz, Jeffery Kane, Samuel McKeown and Bobby Enloe.

North Mountain
4-H Club

The last meeting of the North Mountain 4-H Club was Feb. 26 at the Water-Works Fire Hall.

Some of the members of the club went bowling at the Palmyra Recreation Center Feb. 10 from 6 p.m.-8 p.m. About 25 members and their parents were present. There were also snacks that members of the club brought.

In response to sending out Valentines to the veterans at the Veterans Hospital in Lebanon, a letter was sent to the club as a "thank you" from the people at the hospital.

Emily Whitmoyer suggested the idea of asking kids to bring in food items for the Ronald McDonald House as a way of getting into the Valentine's Day dance at Northern Lebanon. Her idea worked, and she brought in six boxes of food items.

The club would also like to congratulate Andrea Jones from the Latigo Club for receiving a certificate from the Ronald McDonald House. The Latigo Club also collected food.

Any club members who are interested can participate in Capitol Days April 23-24. Club members (ages 15-19) that sign up will go to the capitol and learn about the government and also meet other 4-H'ers from other states and counties. Club members will also be staying overnight at a hotel.

It is also that time of year again for 4-H Camp Shehaqua. The camp is looking for camp counselors. You must be 14 or older.

The next meeting will be March 26 at the Water-Works Fire Hall from 6 p.m.-8 p.m.

North Mountain
Market Goat Club

The first meeting of the North Mountain Market Goat Club was Feb. 24 at Nancy and Doug Dresch's farm.

At the meeting, recent and new members were introduced.

Doug Dresch went over the different rules of goat club and information members needed to know about showing their goat at the Lebanon Area Fair.

At goat club, the members selected new officers: president, Travis Dresch; vice president, Doug Dresch; secretary, Chris Werner; treasurer, Katie Eckert; and news reporter, Kate Gerber.

The next meeting will be March 10 at the Dresch's farm.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Recently, we took advantage of Charter Day when historical sites, administered by Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, were open for free.

When I mentioned to my husband that the Joseph Priestley House in Northumberland was open, he was interested in finding it. And he has lots of maps on hand, he quickly said that he knew where it was located.

So, we asked another couple and drove north of Selinsgrove to the 1795 house. The Priestley house was built to be both stylish and grand. It stands beside the Susquehanna River, and there was a small village nearby in the 1700s. His wife died shortly after he arrived from London with his family.

Joseph Priestley is credited with the discovery of oxygen, and he wrote more than 30 scientific papers. The air we breathe is made up of many gases. Carbon monoxide was one of his discoveries. A retired chemistry teacher portrayed Priestley and performed many experiments for the visitors.

Priestley also was a theologian and wrote a dozen religious works. He held services in his home and helped to start the Unitarian Church in America. His home was furnished with period pieces of furniture. He was a man ahead of his time.

Of the 27 museums in Pennsylvania, we have only visited seven of them. It usually takes time to plan a trip, but these places cover everything from lumber to iron and from oil to battlefields. There is a big difference between Daniel Boone's homestead and Pennsbury Manor where the Penns lived. And the Cornwall Iron furnace is nothing like the Ephrata Cloisters, but they all have their interesting points. So, maybe this summer you could take a day trip to one of these places near your home.

Guide Helps Communities Examine Local Food Supply

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A new planning guide from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences will help people examine their community's food supply through public forums.

The "Edible Connections Planning Guide" includes a 40-page booklet and a videotape and outlines the six essential elements of a forum:

• Setting the Table — establishes the goals and issues to be addressed.

• Food as Lifestyle — considers food as central to diet and health, ethnic diversity, cultural rituals and more.

+/ nFood as Livelihood — addresses the farmers, marketers, manufacturers and others for whom food is a way of earning a living.

• Food as Connection — provides examples of food's contribution to community-building by creating social and economic capital.

• Town Meeting — gives community attendees an opportunity to discuss possible solutions and improvements that will work for their community.

• Celebration of Regional Food — allows attendees to forge new alliances and connections, and draws attention to the wealth of edible resources that exist in any community.

"The booklet will help people ensure that the forum involves key people and discusses topics that are locally important," Thomson says. "You want the total community to participate, including growers, consumers and the media. It's through the media — radio, newspapers and TV — that most people learn about topics that affect their lives and communities."

The twelve-minute videotape presents excerpts from previous forums and comments from people who have conducted forums in Pennsylvania communities.

The packet, "Edible Connections: Changing the Way We Talk About Food, Farm and Community," is available for $30 from the College of Agricultural Sciences Publications Distribution Center. For ordering information, call (814) 865-6713. Credit card orders can be placed by calling toll-free (877) 345-0691.

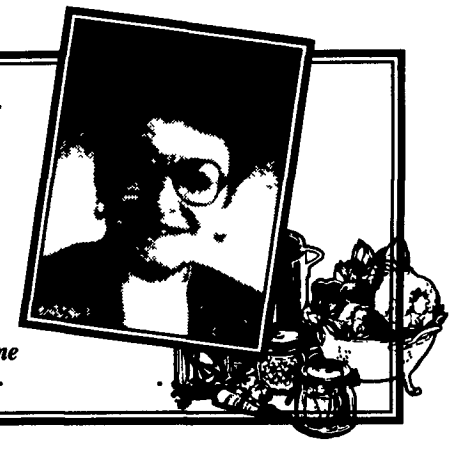
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



We all like to try something new...and kids are no exception. Here are some ideas for snack time that will entice bored appetites. Start with a different kind of bread than the one you usually serve — whole wheat, rye, pumpernickel, or wheat berry. Thinly sliced sandwich bread works well when flattened with rolling pin.

To add interest, cut the sandwiches into triangles, quarters, or finger length strips; or use decorative cookie cutters for special celebrations. Coat one side of the bread with light spread, such as reduced-fat margarine or low-fat cream cheese. This will prevent the sandwich from becoming soggy.

Use a variety of fillings — some sweet, some savory. Peanut butter, thinly sliced cucumbers, banana slices, ham and cheese or mustard — try some new ideas but include children's favorites. If you want your small sandwiches to look fancy, it's best to cut the crusts off just before serving. Stack two or three sandwiches and cut the crusts off all at once. (Use the leftover crusts to make bread pudding or stuffing.)

If you want to make sandwiches ahead of time, you can keep them moist by covering them with wax paper and laying a damp kitchen towel over the waxed paper. Be sure to refrigerate sandwiches. Bread is a good source of complex carbohydrates and other nutrients. By using low-fat and reduced-fat fillings, these little treats become nutritional, as well as tasty snacks.

Here are some new recipes to try:

EGGTASY SANDWICH

2 eggs, hard-boiled and chopped
¼ cup cooked spinach
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 croissants, sliced in half

Mix in last night's leftover spinach for an iron-rich noontime snack. Mix eggs with mayonnaise, then stir in spinach. Spread on croissant. Serves 2.

THREE MUSKACHEESE

¼ cup non-fat cottage cheese
2 tablespoons low fat cream cheese
¼ cup grated cheese (low fat cheddar or jack)
2 slices whole wheat bread

Mix the cheeses and spread on the bread slices. Heat under the broiler until melted. Slice into triangles. Serves 2.

TART TUNA SANDWICH

1 package (8-ounce) low-fat cream cheese
2 tablespoons milk
1 can (6½-ounce) tuna packed in water, drained
4 mini-bagels, slice

Mix cream cheese and milk until soft, and smooth. Add tuna and mix well. Spread on mini-bagels to make sandwiches. Serves 4.

BANANA-CHEESE SANDWICH

1 banana
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons cottage cheese
2 slices raisin bread

Mash banana and lemon juice with fork. Stir in cottage cheese and spread on raisin bread to make sandwich. Serves 1.

Third Graders Learn About National Agriculture Day

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LICKDALE (Lebanon Co.) — Laughter, cheers, and a race to answer quiz questions erupted at the Lickdale Elementary School, Lebanon County, Tuesday.

That's when Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. taught third graders that March 20 is a particularly important day.

"It's National Agriculture Day, and the kickoff day for saving 100 farms in 100 days," Hayes told the students.

"Agriculture" is a cumbersome four-syllable word for third graders to pronounce, but after sounding out the word again and again, the word rolled easily off the students' lips.

"Agriculture," Hayes said, "is about farming.

"We need to save farms because we need milk and food to eat," Hayes said.

Students called out some of the foods and products they knew were produced on farms.

Pa. Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes

"Last year, Pennsylvania saved 280 farms and 3,000 acres from development. Pennsylvania has some of the best farmland protection in the U.S.," Hayes said. "And Lebanon County is a great agricultural county with some of the best farmland."

Third graders at Lickdale Elementary School laugh at the jokes Hayes tells.

Hayes read a humorous story, "Click Clack Moo Cows That Type."

The students interacted with the story by responding to Hayes' questions, jokes, and teasing.

After the story, a 10-question quiz was handed out to students. Because the students answered every question correctly, Hayes handed out prizes with the help of American Honey Queen Renee Blatt, Lebanon County Dairy Princess Sarah Krall, and FFA students. Every student received a magnet, pin, bookmark, honey stick, and Beanie Baby in the shape of a vegetable or fruit.

National Ag Day provides an opportunity for everyone to thank the agricultural industry for their hard work and dedication.

Perhaps you did not know about the day in time to thank a farmer. Don't worry. Thank one today.

Or, perhaps, you are part of a farm family. Did you know that agriculture is the number one industry in Pennsylvania, and that one out of every four Pennsylvanians is employed in an agricultural-related job?

Students eagerly answered quiz questions.

Low Lease Options Got Your Attention?

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Leasing has become a very popular option for acquiring both new and used cars. Advertisers are tempting consumers with lower monthly payments on even the most luxurious of vehicles. Typical car shoppers wishing to spend as little as possible and still drive the car they want have recognized that leasing can be a good option. But how do you know if it's right for you?

Leasing used to be for the business executive: offering a top-of-the-line vehicle and a tax deduction. Today men and women, young and old, from all different walks of life are considering the leasing option. With the average cost of a new vehicle exceeding $20,000, deciding how much payment you can afford is a priority. According to Consumer Reports (www.consumerreports.org), leasing is just one option for financing a vehicle, and it has no inherent advantages over buying. Remember, low payments don't always mean the best value; the additional amount you pay in interest could negate your monthly savings. Nonetheless, leasing could put your dream car within reach.

If you compare leasing and owning, you'll quickly see that monthly payments will differ. For example, at current rates, an $18,500 vehicle with a $3,700 down payment on a three-year loan could give you monthly payments around $446. Leasing the same vehicle for 30 months with a down payment of $250 would result in a monthly payment of $239.

Why? Because, when you lease, you usually give the vehicle back at the end of the lease period. Leasing costs you only the expected decline in the car's value during the term of the lease. Take the time to shop around for the best financing rates; they will differ dramatically from car to car and from leasing company to company. With leasing, your state's sales tax is also reduced, due to the fact that it is based on the amount of your monthly payment.

In contrast, when you purchase a new car, you must pay sales tax on the full amount you've financed ($18,500). Of course, at the end of the three years, you own the car (worth $11,330). With the leasing, you own nothing. The difference between a $250 lease payment and a $446 loan payment over three years equal $7,056. The extra $7,056 buys you a car worth $11,330. That puts you $4,274 ahead when you buy instead of lease. Some people, however, still like the convenience and lower monthly cost of leasing.

Leasing is not for everyone, though. If you have the ability to pay in cash or finance the car in one or two years, think twice. Or, if you drive more than 1,000 miles per month, you should also look at leasing cautiously. Most lease agreements include a 12,000 — 15,000 mileage allowance. Exceeding the mileage allowance can add up when it comes time to turn your car in. For instance, if you have a 12-month, 12,000 mile a year lease and at the end of that year you've driven 15,000 miles, you will have to pay a penalty for the additional 3,000 miles. At the average rate of ten cents per mile, your excess mileage would cost $300.

Used car buyers have benefited greatly from the volume of off-lease vehicles hitting the market and, until recently, this group would have never been considered good lease candidates. However, with the number of short-term lease quality vehicles being turned in, the latest trend is used car leasing.

Leasing is undeniably an option worth looking into when you are considering a new or used car. And, it can be a satisfying experience if you are a tough negotiator and gentle driver, says Consumer Reports. Just remember: take your time before you buy, sell or lease a vehicle. Weigh all of the options, and give yourself a couple of days to think it over.

Dairy Of Distinction Highlights Well-Kept Dairies

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Pennsylvania dairy farms are invited to apply for this year's Dairy of Distinction Award from the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program. Applications must be submitted by April 15.

The award is based on the idea that attractive farmsteads enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales and public support for the industry. Dairies receiving the highest scores in each of 10 Pennsylvania districts will be awarded an 18- by 24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to display in front of their farm.

"This program is run by volunteers and recognizes the hard work and dedication of dairy producers who promote a positive image for the dairy industry," said Mike O'Connor, secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction program and professor of dairy science extension in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences

Roadside judging will take place in May Judges will look at factors that can be controlled by the farmer, such as clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads, and lanes; and well-maintained fences. They also will take into account other aspects of the farm, such as cleanliness of animals, the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management.

Winning farms will be notified in late June Because this is a yearly award, previous winners are reevaluated each year to see if they are still maintaining excellent standards

To receive an application, call Mike O'Connor at (814) 863-3913 or e-mail him at MOConnor@das psu edu

Since 1987, Pennsylvania's Dairy of Distinction Program has recognized more than 750 dairy farms The Pennsylvania program is part of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, which also includes New York, New Jersey, and Vermont Dairies in these states can contact the program secretary in their state for applications

How Is Your Farm Scored?

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors, which can be controlled by the farmer Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane) Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy producers or dairy farming Farmers who apply for awards agree that, if selected, they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition

How The Judging Works

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent of their Dairy of Distinction score card Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality

3 The sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside An attractive post and bracket, or other frame shall be used to display the sign No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign The sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage
4 Signs shall not be moved to other premises New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign
5 Replacement of damaged signs shall be at the discretion of the committee
6 No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses
7 The judges' decision will be final
8 Judging will take place between May 1 and May 31
9 Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1 and April 30 If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1 and May 31 so they have the opportunity to keep the sign
10 Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee

Kendra Inman Crowned New York State Dairy Princess

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Kendra Inman, from Bovina Center, was crowned the New York State Dairy Princess on Feb. 20, at the Holiday Inn in Liverpool, N.Y.

Having served as the Delaware County Dairy Princess since last spring, Inman will devote an additional year promoting milk and dairy products in conjunction with the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC). As state princess, Inman received a $1,200 scholarship and will represent ADADC at county dairy princess pageants, farm meetings, and a variety of special events. In addition, she will help train new county promoters at seminars and workshops.

Kendra was also recognized for outstanding speech performance, winning $100, courtesy of New York Farm Bureau.

The 17-year-old Inman is a freshman at SUNY Cobleskill, studying animal science. She is president of Delaware County Junior Holstein Club and education chairperson of New York Junior Holstein Association. Kendra lives on a family farm which milks 85 registered Holsteins.

Elizabeth Newbold of New Berlin, N.Y. in Chenango County, was named first alternate state princess. She received a $700 scholarship, plus $100 for outstanding speech performance, $100 for outstanding performance on a written communications test, and $200 for outstanding public relations efforts. Other finalists were Jackie Woolschlager, Casteroland; Sarah Blood, Cobleskill; Jennifer Godin, Constable; Barbara Gibbs, Slate Hill.

Thirty-two county dairy princesses competed in the state pageant, vying for the title relinquished by reigning princess Marianne Moody, Delaware County. Judges evaluated the contestants on their communication skills, knowledge of milk and dairy products, poise, and personality.

Judges were Alison Littlefield, former New York State Dairy Princess and elementary school teacher; Mark Kenville, LaTorra, Paul & McCann Advertising Agency; and Charlene Ranck, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services chairperson, southeast coordinator.

Sewing tools primarily used between 1850-1910 were often encased in ivory, mother-of-pearl or wooden hand-carved cases. Thread winders, lace bobbins, tape measures, and needle holders most often are found in wooden containers, but women of means often had items accented with ivory, mother-of-pearl, and even diamond chips. A number of unusual pin cushions also show the unique talents of that era.

Sue Murphy, left, and Carol Woodbridge examine the items packed tightly within the small Ladies Companion case, which holds an amazing number of sewing items, a perfume bottle, and cosmetics. In good condition, the Ladies Companion sells for $850.

Sewing Collectibles Chronicle Needlework Movement

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "I used to sew every stitch on my back. Then I started graduate school, and didn't have time to sew. So I started collecting every piece I could find," Sue Murphy said of her extensive collection of antique sewing items.

Murphy, of Cedar Hill Farm, Milford, N.J., finished her education and retired from her career in education, but her affinity for collecting continues to grow.

Murphy takes her collections of Americana, quilts, and folk arts to about three quilt shows annually. Recently, her novel collection of items that pertain to women grabbed the attention of visitors at the Quilters' Heritage Celebration, Lancaster.

"All these items are interesting, but quilters seem to like the sewing tools best," Murphy said.

Her collections chronicle the items that women considered essential from 1850s-1910. During that era, women cherished fine needlepoint skills and were never far from thread, needle, and thimble. Sewing supplies were such a necessary part of their lives that women found novel ways to keep them close at hand. One was a ring with an attachment of items that a woman wore on her pinkie finger during an evening out. Also popular was a chatelaine, a chain wore around the waist to hold keys, purse, and sewing supplies.

The sewing items of the 1800s were not strictly utilitarian. Instead, elaborate cases in ivory, mother-of-pearl, studded with diamond chips and other gems enclosed such sewing necessities as needle, thread winder, lace bobbin, and tape measure. Pin cushions, too, showed originality, such as one made of sea shells.

Murphy said the handcrafted wooden cases were typically owned by all classes, and ivory and jeweled cases were owned by the upper class.

Although many of the antique sewing tools appear as delicate as fine jewelry, their strength has endured generations of use. The ivory handles have worn to a subtle sheen.

In addition to sewing tools, Murphy's collection includes antique quilts, hand-knit stockings, pantaloons, and other clothing.

Sandy McCay, who owns a shop named Cotton in the Cabin, Spencerville, Ind., displayed a collection of antiques for quilters, vintage fabrics, and old quilts.

Spool cabinets from the turn of the century were used in mercantiles to display floss, silk, and threads. Now these cabinets are in demand. Collectors often use the cabinets as end tables, coffee tables, or stack them for eye-catching decor in their homes.

Vintage linens, doilies, handkerchiefs with elaborate embroidery and 'crazy' quilts from 1876-1890 were also displayed at the Quilters' Heritage Celebration.

Antique dealers most often evolve. According to Murphy, fascination with one item often ignites collections, which soon expand to include related items. Often their collections grow so extensive that they sell a few items to make room for more.

"It's contagious," Murphy said of collecting sewing memorabilia.

Black memorabilia are really popular collectors' items. This bucket was probably filled with penny candy and displayed in stores sometime between 1930-1940. Elaine Buck, Ohio, recently displayed this at a benefit auction for the Elverson Fire Company.

A 1920s' evening handbag shows the fine needlepoint detail of that era. It sells for $85.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

Perfume Bottles Show Glassmaker Artistry

Since the 19th century, perfume bottles have been collected for their beauty, long after the last drop of fragrance has disappeared.

Today's collectors recently had an opportunity to buy some of the rarest 20th century designed perfume bottles. More than 150 bottles from a one-owner collection went up for bid at a recent Doyle New York auction. It wasn't just the designer names such as Salvador Dali, Rene' Lalique, that made the auction so special, but the designs themselves. They sold from a low $632 for the Lubin Au Solei designed by Maurice D'Epinoix with a lifelike lizard looking at a fly on a stopper to a Lalique designed Bouchon Fleurs de Pommiers fro $8,625. Surprisingly selling under estimate was Le Roi Soleil, c.1946, designed by Salvador Dali, estimated at $6,000. It sold for $3,450. Made of Baccarat crystal in a three-dimensional seascape with enameled waves and gilded rocks.

What made the design so unique? The stopper's cover depicts the blazing sun rising over the horizon and black seagulls give the sun clearly defined facial features. It had historical importance as well. Le Roy Soleil perfume celebrated the Allied victory in Europe after World War II and was named after Louis XIV, who was known as the "Sun King."

Before there were perfume bottles and perfumes, their were scented oils and aromatics used in ancient Egypt. They were burned as incense to gods and ancestors.

The word "perfume" came from the Latin, "through smoke." Not until the technique for distilling alcohol was perfected around 1320 in Italy did perfumes come into being. And, the making of beautiful bottles to contain them began. By 1665, glass perfume bottles were being made in France.

With the introduction of porcelain to Europe in the 18th century, English factories such as Wedgewood and Chelsea began making perfume bottles. Among the most unusual were the figurals made by Chelsea and included cupids, musicians, and fashionable ladies.

By the 19th century, with help from Napoleon and Josephine, France became dominant in the perfume industry. Bohemian glass, renowned for fine engraving and gilt-enamel decoration made many perfume bottles, which found their way around the world. With the discovery of new ways to blend florals in the 1830s, followed by the development of synthetic scents, the perfume industry assumed new importance. Top designers and glassmakers such as Lalique and glasshouses like Baccarat, and companies like Tiffany and Company created beautiful perfume bottles for the newly rich. The elegant bottles were soon being collected.

Clues: Names from the 1920s, which collectors look for, include those designed by Julien Viard. He was the first to create stoppers in the form of human figures.

During the 1930s, many of the perfume classics were created, along with designer bottles. Highly collectible is the Schiaparelli 1937 perfume, "Shocking," based on her favorite color shocking pink. The bottle, shaped like a woman's torso became an instant hit. Any of the many designer bottles made for Schiaparelli are very collectible.

In the post war era of the late 1940s, French couturier Nina Ricci introduced her new perfume L'Air du Temps, a glass sculpture by Lalique. The top is crowned with two doves in flight, meeting in a kiss. Although it continues to be made, the first bottle should be marked on the bottom: "Lalique, France."

Now's the time for beginning collectors to look for perfume bottles from the 1980s and 1990s. They often turn up in estate sales and flea markets.

Be picky. Look for the most unusual shapes, figural stoppers or forms. Miniatures often given away as samples in department stores are another possibility.

Farm Service Agency Reserves Funds For Socially Disadvantaged Persons

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Farm Service Agency (FSA) can make and guarantee loans to socially disadvantaged applicants to buy and operate family-size farms and ranches. Funds specifically for these loans are reserved each year.

A socially disadvantaged farmer is one of a group whose members has been subjected to racial, ethnic, or gender prejudice because of their identity as member of the group without regard to their individual qualities. For purposes of this program, socially disadvantaged groups are women, African Americans, American Indians, and Alaskan Natives, Hispanics, and Asians and Pacific Islanders.

Direct loans are made to applicants by FSA and include both farm operating and farm ownership loans.

Guaranteed loans also may be made for ownership or operating purposes, and may be made by any lending institution subject to Federal or State supervision (banks, saving and loans, insurance companies and units of the Farm Credit system). Typically, FSA guarantees 90 or 95 percent of a loan against any loss that might be incurred if the loan fails.

Farm-ownership loan funds may be used to purchase or enlarge a farm, purchase easements or rights of way needing in the farm's operation, erect or improve buildings, such as a dwelling or barn, promote soil and water conservation and development and pay closing costs.

Farm operating loan funds may be used to purchase livestock, poultry, farm and home equipment, feed, seed, fuel, fertilizer, chemicals, hail and other crop insurance, food, clothing, medical care, and hired labor. Funds also may be used to install or improve water systems for home use, livestock or irrigation, and other improvements.

Individuals, partnerships, joint operations, corporations, and cooperatives primarily and directly engaged in farms and ranching on family-size operations may apply. A family-size farm is considered to be one that a family can operate and mange itself. In addition to being members of a socially disadvantaged group, individual applicants under this program must meet all requirements for FSA's regular farm loan program assistance. To be eligible, an applicant must, among other requirements, have a satisfactory history of meeting credit obligations, have sufficient education, training, or at least one year's experience in managing or operating a farm or ranch within the last five years for an operating loan, or, for an ownership loan, have three years experience in operating a farm. Also, one must be a citizen of the United States (or legal resident alien); be unable to obtain credit elsewhere at reasonable rates and terms to meet actual needs, and possess the legal capacity to incur the obligation of the loan.

Corporations, joint operations, and partnerships must meet additional eligibility requirements.

Repayment terms for direct operating loans depend on the collateral securing the loan and usually run from 1 to 7 years. Repayment terms for direct ownership loans can be as long as 40 years. Guaranteed loan terms are set by the lender. Interest rates for guaranteed loans are established by the lender.

Persons who think they might be eligible are to contact their local Farm Service Agency County Office, as listed in the blue pages of your phone directory.

Air Quality, Reproductive Diseases Seminar Topics

BIRD IN HAND (Lancaster Co.) — Approximately 150 local dairy farmers met here Feb. 14 at the annual Hoober Feeds 2001 Dairy Seminar.

Dairy producers gathered to hear three guest speaker address topics pertaining to some aspect of dairy cattle management.

Topics were selected that each have a direct impact on dairy cattle performance and farm profitability.

Dan McFarland, multicounty extension dairy agent in York County, covered the topic of "Air Quality in Dairy Cattle Shelters." He pointed out that maintaining air quality is more than just turning on the fans when it gets hot. He cited five areas which are directly affected by air quality 365 days a year. These areas are:

1. Animal health — air quality has a direct effect on respiratory problems and heat stress.
2. Udder health — air quality has a direct effect on the moisture content of the resting surface.
3. Foot health — air quality has a direct effect on the traction that animals have in alleyways.
4. Building life — air quality has a direct effect on deterioration rate of equipment.
5. Feed consumption — air quality has a direct effect on feed deterioration and consumption.

Air that is laden with moisture and gases in dairy cattle shelters has a negative effect on all of these areas. Air that is kept fresh and cool in dairy cattle shelters will have a positive effect on all of these areas.

McFarland also cited the following ranges of temperature and humidity for dairy cattle: temperatures in the 40-60 degree range and relative humidities in the 40-60 percent range are desirable for dairy cattle. Temperatures below 32 degrees increase maintenance requirements and temperatures above 78 degrees result in heat stress.

Relative humidities below 40 percent result in dusty conditions and humidities above 60 percent result in condensation.

McFarland concluded by highlighting different methods of controlling air quality, including natural ventilation, tunnel ventilation, evaporative cooling, circulating fans, and misters. He stressed that monitoring of air quality and maintenance of equipment is very important.

Dr. Dave Griswold, extension veterinarian/field investigator for Penn State presented "Diseases That Effect Reproduction in Dairy Cattle."

Last on the program was Tom Nauman, nutritionist for Hoober Feeds. Nauman highlighted changes that would be made in balancing dairy cattle rations based on new recommendations from the National Research Council's latest edition of "Nutrient Requirements of Dairy Cattle."

Bobcat Celebrates Skid-Steer Loader Milestone

GWINNER, N.D. — Bobcat Company, a business unit of Ingersoll-Rand, announced that it has built the 500,000th Bobcat® skid-steer loader at its flagship Gwinner, N.D., manufacturing plant.

This half-million milestone is the result of more than 40 years of compact equipment dedication and innovation. The 500,000 Bobcat skid-steer loaders built since 1958 represent more than all of the other brands combined. Worldwide, there are some three dozen other manufacturers of skid-steer loaders.

"Since 1958, Bobcat skid-steer loaders have helped to change the way the world works," said Chuck Hoge, president and CEO of Bobcat Company. "We are excited at their tremendous growth and acceptance, and proud to have played the leading role in the development of the skid-steer loader industry. In the past decade, we've used our success in this industry to become the leader in compact equipment, specifically compact excavators, where Bobcat is the market-share leader in every area outside of Japan.

"Much of the growth of the skid-steer loader industry is due to the contribution of attachments — ranging from sweepers to snowblowers, pallet forks to grapples, augers to backhoes — that turn a four-wheel-drive power unit into a versatile 'Swiss Army knife' that makes it the machine of choice for hundreds of applications in every imaginable market segment. Bobcat Company alone designs, manufacturers and supports more than 50 different types of attachments.

"As we look ahead, we will continue to listen to our users around the world to give them the most effective compact equipment tools available."

Dow To Acquire Rohm And Haas Company's Ag Chemicals Business

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. and PHILADELPHIA — The Dow Chemical Company and Rohm and Haas Company announced they have reached agreement for Dow AgroSciences LLC, a wholly owned subsidiary of Dow, to purchase Rohm and Haas's Agricultural Chemicals business, including working capital, for approximately $1 billion.

Under terms of the agreement, Dow AgroSciences will acquire Rohm and Haas's Agricultural Chemicals business, including its well-recognized fungicide lines, insecticides, herbicides, other product lines, trademarks, and license to all agricultural uses of its biotechnology assets. The transaction is expected to close in second quarter 2001, subject to regulatory approvals.

According to A. Charles Fischer, president and CEO of Dow AgroSciences, "We are delighted with the proposal acquisition of the Rohm and Haas agricultural business, which includes its prominent fungicide lines, insecticides, and herbicides. These product lines complement and enhance Dow AgroSciences' portfolio by adding high-performance, brand name products for specialty crops as well as turf and ornamental businesses around the world. In addition, this transaction will further boast our global scale and reach, allowing us to better serve our customers in these key high value businesses."

"The decision to sell our Agricultural Chemicals business was a difficult one, especially considering the long history with our company," said Raj Gupta, Rohm and Haas Company's Chairman and CEO. "The business has a premier reputation in the market and has contributed substantially to the success of the company for some 70 years. However, as we continue to reshape our portfolio for the future, it has become increasingly evident that the Agricultural Chemicals business will flourish more as part of a global firm with a stronger presence serving the agricultural markets. Dow AgroSciences is among the world leaders in the crop protection business. They have the experience, the know-how, and the resources to ensure the continued vitality of this business as part of its presence in the marketplace."

The sale will result in the transfer of ownership of parts of Rohm and Haas's manufacturing sites in Jacarei, Brazil; Barranquilla, Colombia; Laterbourg, France; and Mozzanica, Italy; all of the Nantong, China plant will transfer, as well as assets owned by Rohm and Haas in Muscatine, Iowa. The Philadelphia plant's Agricultural Chemicals operations will become a toll manufacturing site for Dow AgroSciences.

Tips Help Manage, Prevent Calf Diarrhea

R. Tom Bass II
DVM, PhD

In recent months, several producers have commented that scouring calves have become a significant problem. While several different bugs cause diarrhea in calves at different ages, the methods to prevent and treat this disease are generally the same, regardless of the cause.

Efforts to prevent scours should receive greater emphasis by producers and consultants, rather than trying to decide which antibiotic or feed additive to use for treatment. The three most important considerations in preventing calf scours are: 1) ensuring calves consume adequate amounts (four quarts) of high quality colostrum within six hours of birth, 2) minimizing calf stress and exposure to pathogens, and 3) keeping calves on a good plane of nutrition.

Make sure calves are born in a clean, dry environment and receive an adequate amount of high quality colostrum. Calf housing should be clean, dry, well ventilated, and cleaned/disinfected between calves. Baby calves should be housed separately. Preventing direct contact between calves greatly decreases disease transmission.

Maintaining proper fluid and electrolyte balance is the most important component of successful treatment of scouring calves. An electrolyte solution such as Electrolytes Plus™ (Sav-a-Calf™) is an excellent product because it contains high levels of electrolytes (minerals), glucose (scouring calves often have low blood sugar concentrations), sodium bicarbonate (dehydrated calves are usually acidotis), and glycine (aids in absorption of sodium and glucose). Most calves should receive two-four quarts of electrolyte solution per day, depending upon the severity of the diarrhea.

Some producers withhold milk replacer from scouring calves. However, these calves will recover sooner if they remain on milk replacer. Adequate nutrition is important to maintaining proper immune function. Feeding smaller amounts at more frequent intervals is better tolerated by scouring calves. Calves that are sick and/or dehydrated enough to be given oral electrolytes (these calves are usually depressed and have reduced appetites), should be given at least three quarts of milk replacer per day, divided into three feedings of one quart each.

Antibiotic treatment for scouring calves is a widely debated topic. Remember that antibiotics have no effect on viruses or some protozoa such as cryptosporidia (these cause many cases of scours), and often have limited effects on bacteria such as Salmonella and E. coli. Antibiotic usage is often of no benefit, and in some cases may actually do more harm than good. Antibiotic selection and use in scouring calves should be discussed thoroughly with and approved by the herd veterinarian.

Monsanto Backs Up Growers With Warranty

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — "Farming is about managing risk and controlling costs. Growers know they can rely on Roundup® herbicide to control weeds, and we back up growers with the best warranty in the business," said Dean Hendrickson, U.S. Roundup brand manager.

Growers who apply Roundup UltraMAX, Roundup Ultra®, and Roundup UltraDry™ are guaranteed good weed control even if it rains after spraying. Through Monsanto's new rainfast warranty, qualified growers who need to respray because of an unexpected rain shower more than one hour after application can receive herbicide for that respray at no cost.

"Thirty years of research has proven that Roundup provides unsurpassed weed control," said Hendrickson. "The rainfast warranty helps growers reduce their risk when they rely on the proven performance of Roundup UltraMAX with patented TranSorb™ technology."

New research shows that Roundup UltraMAX offers weed control superior to Syngenta's latest imitator, delivering three times more weed-killing power to the roots in just two hours. "We've continually improved the products that are members of the Roundup family to ensure that Roundup users get the maximum value from their herbicide investment," said Hendrickson.

"No other product on the market surpasses Roundup UltraMAX for weed control, crop safety, and convenience," he said. "The Roundup Ultra family of herbicides has proven crop safety on 150 million acres of Roundup Ready® crops. And each power-packed gallon of Roundup UltraMAX can cover five acres."

The rainfast warranty is part of the company's Roundup Rewards™ Value Package, which provides a broad range of risk-sharing incentives for growers who purchase Roundup brand herbicides and Monsanto seed technologies from authorized dealers. Besides the rainfast warranty, the package helps protect growers' seed investment from catastrophic loss. It also offers crop-loss protection that refunds the cost of the seed technology if crop is lost and replant refund protection if a grower can replant after a crop loss.

Flooded Soils And Nutrient Availability

NORCROSS, Ga. — Heavier than normal snowfall amounts this winter, combined with excessive summer and fall precipitation in 2000, are going to result in water-logged fields in some areas of western Canada. The impact of saturated soil conditions on nutrient availability and losses differs with each of the macronutrients. The difficulty that often arises is identifying an actual nutrient deficiency symptom on a plant under stress due to excessive water.

Under saturated soil conditions, losses of soil nitrogen can be substantial. Nitrate nitrogen can be lost by leaching down and out of the reach of crops. While leaching occurs rapidly on coarse textured sandy soils, it is a slower process on loam and clay soils due to slower water movement. The gaseous loss of nitrogen by denitrification occurs when soil microorganisms reduce nitrate under saturated conditions, leading to loss of nitrogen gas. In addition, soil microorganisms are not very effective at decomposing crop residues and organic matter when the soil is saturated, slowing the release of nitrogen from this source.

The mobility of sulfate makes it subject to leaching, similar to nitrate. However, unlike nitrate, losses of sulfate by volatilization from the soil are negligible. As a result, in the absence of leaching, soil sulfur is not affected to any great extent under conditions of excess water. Being a nutrient that comes mainly from the soil organic matter, sulfur is impacted by any physical factor that restricts microbial assisted release.

Due to its precipitation with calcium and magnesium in calcareous soils, phosphorus is not leached from the soil. However, its availability to plants can be dramatically reduced under wet soil conditions. Reduced microbial activity and chemical transformation in saturated soils reduce phosphorus release from the organic and mineral complex. In addition, the beneficial fungi, mycorrhizae, which normally enhance the absorption of phosphorus and other nutrients, are often reduced after flooded conditions. This leads to limited plant access to soil phosphorus supplies due to the restricted volume of soil being explored by the plant root system.

Flooding of soils has little direct effect on potassium availability. However, indirectly, soil potassium and phosphorus may be less available in soils that remain wet and cold in the spring of the year. Wet soils are more prone to compaction, which also restricts plant root growth and uptake of soil potassium. In addition, the role that potassium plays in helping crops to resist plant disease can be negatively affected when saturated soil conditions limit crop uptake.

When challenged by adverse environmental conditions, like saturated soils, we need to rely on some of our basic tools. In particular, we need to keep in mind the reactions that nitrogen, sulfur, phosphorus, and potassium are subject to with excess water. Also, spring soil sampling will help us clarify what impact the wet soil conditions have had on those nutrients subject to large potential loss, like nitrogen.

Maximize Your Yield Potential

Minimal

When it comes to improving Relative Feed Value and maximizing the Crude Protein in hay, nothing outperforms the New Idea® 5209 Disc Mower Conditioner. Its high-speed disc cutterbar glides through fields with ease, even in extreme conditions. And the unique Ti-Cor® Conditioning Rolls gently condition the stems, speeding drydown.

The 5209's reliable design keeps you mowing and conditioning year after year. With the segmented cutterbar driveshaft, a New Idea innovation, the cutterbar is truly modular, which makes for easy maintenance.

To see the disc mower conditioner that'll exceed your expectations — not your budget, visit your AGCO® New Idea dealer today.

GEHL

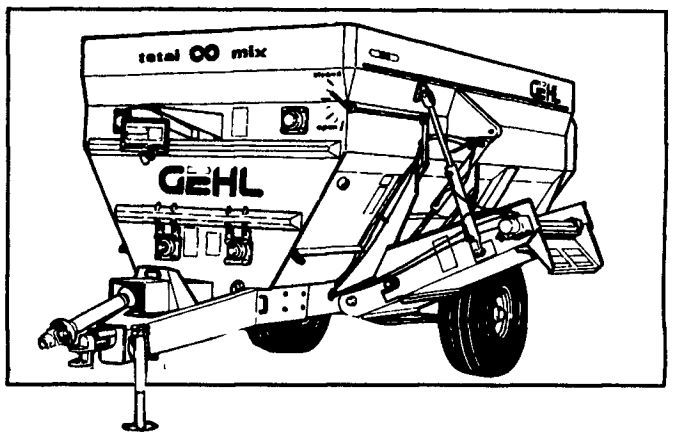
YOUR LIVESTOCK IMPLEMENT LINE

TMR "Total Mix" Mixer Feeders



"Total Mix" TMR mixer feeders let you mix more long-stemmed hay into your ration - up to 30% by weight depending on hay type and moisture content.

- "Hay - slicer auger" - Incorporates knife assemblies into the two bottom augers.
- Better mixing action - Four-auger design creates a double figure - 8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy efficient - Planetary drive system requires less horsepower.
- Built to last - Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life.
- Five sizes - 150 to 455 cubic feet capacities.

THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

Governor's Award Applications Available

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Regional Director Michael Steiner encouraged environmental leaders, including employers, local governments and individuals, to apply for the 2001 Governor's Award for Environmental Excellence by the May 4 deadline.

"Gov. Tom Ridge created these awards to recognize Pennsylvania's environmental leaders for their efforts in preserving and enhancing our environment," Steiner said. "Each year, the winners of the award demonstrate the positive relationship between protecting our natural resources and strengthening our economy."

Since January 1997, the 132 award winners have realized $460 million in cost savings. And they have reduced wastewater by 3.3 billion gallons, solid waste by 93 million tons, air emissions by 88 million tons and saved more than 40 million kilowatt hours of electricity. The numbers continue to grow because they are annual savings.

"For example, 2000 winner Mott's Aspers Plant has diverted 17,000 tons of waste from landfills, and reduced 2.3 percent in energy use per cubic meter of product," Steiner said. "The plant was able to achieve all this while saving $45,000 annually in wastewater treatment costs."

The Apsers Plant, located in Aspers, is the maker of applesauce, apple juice, and other drinks.

According to Steiner, the company recently developed and implemented an environmental management system, and as a result, became the first food processing plant in the nation to earn ISO 14001 certification, an internationally recognized measure of environmental excellence.

Since 1996, Gov. Ridge has presented the Governor's Award for Environmental Excellence to Pennsylvania's leaders in innovative green technologies and environmental management. The awards honor individuals, businesses, municipalities and institutions working to benefit Pennsylvania's environment and economy.

Any Pennsylvania business, government agency, municipality, organization, individual, farm or agribusiness engaged in pollution prevention, recycling, or energy efficiency efforts in the commonwealth is eligible to participate in the Governor's Award for Environmental Excellence. A portion of the project must have been implemented during 2001 to be eligible. Awards will be issued for projects in four categories: resource protection, land use, energy efficiency, and education and outreach.

To submit or download a 2001 Governor's Award application electronically or to find out more information on the awards program including descriptions and video clips of previous winners, visit DEP through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.dep.state.pa.us (directLINK "2001 Application").

Pioneer Receives Patent For SCN Molecular Marker Technology Process

DES MOINES, Iowa — Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. has received a patent for the marker-assisted selection (MAS) process that uses molecular markers to select soybean varieties resistant to soybean cyst nematodes (SCN).

This marker technology helps company researchers identify high-yielding, SCN-resistant varieties and bring them to market as much as two years faster than in the past.

"MAS is a critical tool for streamlining the development of soybean varieties that combine SCN-resistance with superior performance," noted John Soper, director of soybean research for Pioneer. "Soybean cyst nematodes cost growers across North America more than $1 billion in lost yields each year. MAS enhances the precision and efficiency of identifying resistant varieties, which helps us speed product development and ultimately provides growers with more choices in combating these costly pests."

In addition to the new patent for SCN selection, Pioneer received a similar patent in 1999 for the MAS process used to select soybean varieties with brown stem rot (BSR) resistance. Molecular markers act as genetic road signs, indicating where scientists can look on a segment of DNA for genes related to a specific trait. Once molecular markers are identified, researchers can use DNA analysis early in product development to screen for the presence of these traits. This reduces extensive trait-specific field-testing, which can be very time-intensive and is far less precise.

"Field characterization and identification of a complex trait can be tricky," Soper noted. "The ideal conditions — the combination of pathogen, environment, and plant genes — to determine whether or not the trait is present, do not always exist. This can extend the testing process and delay commercialization of products with valuable characteristics."

Screening varieties for SCN- and BSR-resistance prior to yield testing is more efficient and saves valuable time. "If we know the gene with resistance is in the variety before we yield test, we have a greater probability of identifying higher-performing, resistant varieties in our field plots," Soper said.

"We're now able to move our experimental lines into the field with complete confidence that they contain the traits we want," he said. "This allows us to focus our field-testing efforts on what we really need to do — test for yield and performance across a broad range of growing environments and conditions."

Since 1996, every first-year experimental soybean variety has been tested using MAS. More than one-half-million soybean plant samples are screened annually, and those showing resistance are passed along to field-testing.

Four new SCN-resistant varieties and one new BSR-resistant variety in the 2001 Pioneer soybean lineup can be directly attributed to the company's use of this patented molecular marker technology.

In addition to screening for SCN- and BSR-resistance, marker-assisted selection is also being used today to screen many experimental soybean varieties for phytophthora-resistance and will be key to the development of markers for others valuable traits in the future.

NYADC Seeks New Executive Director

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — NY AgriDevelopment Corporation Executive Director Michael Chamberlain has left the organization to pursue other opportunities. The Metropolitan Development Association of Syracuse and Central New York, an affiliate member of the NYADC, will be responsible for day to day activities until a search is completed for a new full-time director.

The MDA is among the nation's top economic development, planning, and research organizations and was principally involved with the creation of the NYADC in the summer of 1999. Sixteen firms have since joined and committed resources to the organization, which seeks to increase the number and profitability of agribusiness companies, the number of people employed by those companies, the level of investment in agriculture projects and ventures, and the viability and visibility of agriculture in New York State.

Several projects, including the $3.3 million renovation of a western New York feed mill that saved 16 full-time jobs and guaranteed continued service to some 150 farm-families in southern Erie County, are already under way. NYADC has guided the redevelopment of the Gramco, Inc. feed mill by coordinating a program that helped the company develop its new business plan, provided financing for the new plant's construction, and provided economic development incentives and training grants.

After more than 80 years in business, Gramco faced closure last year when fire destroyed its most modern facility in the town of Franklinville. Led by the NYADC, construction of a new facility began last October and will be completed this spring.

NYADC is also heavily involved with a number of other agridevelopment and food processing initiatives, including a proposed $14 million state-of-the-art feed and fertilizer transload and blending facility in Livingston County. The Commodity Resource Corporation project would mean efficient, high volume commodity handling that would help New York agriculture grow and remain competitive.

Meanwhile, another initiative being considered by the NYADC board is the retention of a nationally recognized agribusiness consultant to support NYADC's efforts to stimulate agribusiness growth and profitability in New York State. In this regard, NYADC is developing a comprehensive scope of work that would address three primary issues:

- Identification of the state's agribusiness assets meaningful to industry prospects.
- Identification of industry growth trends at the state, national, and international levels.
- Identification of specific firms that could be attracted to New York State based on their needs and the state's assets.

"Partnership with a consultant would complement our existing efforts to assess new opportunities and develop strategies to meet our objectives," said NYADC president Richard P. Smith, chief executive officer of Dairylea Cooperative, Inc.

Bunt Urges Congress To Approve Dairy Compact

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Rep. Raymond Bunt Jr. (R-147) has sent a letter to the members of Pennsylvania's congressional delegation urging them to support making the Commonwealth a member of the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact.

According to Bunt, who chairs the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, joining the compact would offer Pennsylvania farmers a fair and predictable price for the milk they produce, bringing economic stability to farmers and farming communities in Montgomery County and across the state.

"It is estimated that in the past calendar year, had Pennsylvania been a member of the Northeast Dairy Compact, dairy farmers in the state would have received an additional $122 million in compact payments," Bunt wrote.

"At an average of $12,500 per farm, this could easily mean the difference between making a profit and being forced to sell the farm. Unfortunately...when a farm goes out of business it rarely returns as an active farm; it is lost forever. For the stability of agriculture and our rural communities, it is essential that we not allow this to happen."

The Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact is a group of six participating New England states that regulates the shipment and sale of Class I milk sold in or out of those states, including setting a fixed price

The General Assembly in 1999 passed the necessary legislation for the state to join; now Congress has to approve the state's membership, Bunt said.

Pennsylvania is the fourth leading dairy state in the nation, with a total value of milk produced of more than $1.5 billion.

NCGA Endorses Rural America

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) gave its strong support to legislative initiatives to help regrow rural America, sponsored by Rep. John Thune (R-SD). The bills' co-sponsors include Rep. Jo Ann Emerson (R-MO) and Rep. Dennis Rehberg (R-MT).

Hurley, S.D. farmer Darrin Ihnen, an NCGA member and vice president of the South Dakota Corn Growers Association, represented corn growers March 15 during a Capitol Hill press conference to introduce Rep. Thune's "Value-Added Development Act for American Agriculture" and the "Farmers' Value-Added Agricultural Investment Tax Credit Act."

The Value-Added Development Act for American Agriculture would provide grants over three years to create "Agriculture Innovation Centers." These centers would provide technical expertise — such as engineering, business planning and market development — to help growers form producer-owned value-added operations, such as ethanol plants.

The Farmers' Value-Added Agricultural Investment Tax Credit Act would enable growers to make the transition from "price takers." In other words, the tax credit would help growers to become successful vertical integrators so that they can reach up the agricultural marketing chain and capture the profits generated by the processing of commodities they grow.

"At a time when most parts of rural America are in decline, action is needed to give farmers guidance in their profession and farming communities," Ihnen said. "Both of these acts will provide American farmers the tools they desperately need to successfully become vertical integrators and transform themselves from price takers to price makers."

Miller Resolution Honors FFA

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The House of Representatives has approved a resolution introduced by Rep. Sheila Miller (R-129) honoring the Pennsylvania FFA for its 72 years of distinguished service and accomplishment.

"The mission of FFA, formerly called Future Farmers of America, is to make a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for leadership, personal growth and career success," Miller said. "I cannot think of any mission more important to the future success of our children and of our Commonwealth."

"I have first-hand knowledge of the benefits that FFA involvement brings to students. I have seen the public speaking skills of young people evolve as they participate and compete in a wide variety of activities," she continued. "I am proud that my daughter has joined the FFA and received the Greenhand award in her freshman year. She was also a member of the second-place livestock judging team and placed third in competition at Springfield, Mass. These are great individual achievements, but these FFA experiences also have taught her the importance of teamwork."

FFA is able to achieve its mission by encouraging cooperation, promoting good citizenship and inspiring patriotism among its members. It also plays a valuable role in educating people of all ages about the important of agriculture, Pennsylvania's number one industry.

The state association of FFA was chartered in 1929 and now has approximately 8,000 members in 148 chapters. The nationwide membership of FFA is more than 450,000.

The national organization dates back to 1928 when, during the National Livestock Judging Contest, 33 students from 18 states joined together to establish the organization with the goal of providing leadership training for farm boys.

Girls were admitted to membership in FFA starting in 1969, and today they make up more than a quarter of the organization's membership.

FFA has associations in all 50 states, as well as in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Cattle Virus May Contribute To Development Of Turkey Disease

WOOSTER, Ohio — A common cattle virus has been found to cause an enteric disease in turkeys that can lead to poult enteritis and mortality syndrome, an emerging disease that causes high mortality rates and severe economic losses to the poultry industry.

A team of Ohio State University researchers with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center's Food Animal Health Research Program found that specific pathogen-free young turkey poults injected with a strain of bovine coronavirus, along with a novel astrovirus, developed a disease similar to poult enteritis and mortality syndrome (PEMS). Research has shown that turkey coronavirus and the astrovirus, which attacks the immune system, contribute to the development of the disease.

"When it was found that the coronavirus contributes to the development of PEMS, it raised a question of whether turkeys raised close to beef cattle operations could become infected with the bovine coronavirus," said Mo Saif, head of the project. "So we took the coronavirus from cattle and gave it to turkeys and found that it caused a disease similar to that caused by turkey coronavirus."

PEMS was first diagnosed in 1991 in North Carolina. Since then it has spread to other states such as South Carolina, Texas, Virginia and Indiana and has cost the poultry industry more than $34 million in losses. The disease, which attacks poults age two to four weeks, can cause a mortality rate as high as 70 percent. PEMS weakens the immune system, leaving turkeys highly susceptible to bacterial and parasitic infections. Those birds that survive become stunted in growth. That is, the turkey no longer gains weight despite the amount of feed it consumes.

So far, PEMS has not been found in Ohio, simply because the turkey coronavirus and astrovirus have not been identified in flocks on Ohio farms. Saif advises, however, to follow strict biosecurity procedures to avoid any possible contamination of flocks.

"Give the turkeys vitamins and minerals. Make sure the ventilation system is working well and that water and feed are fresh and available," said Saif. "Also keep wild birds and other animals off the farm." He added that it's also not a good idea to keep more than one animal species together or more than one age group of turkeys in the same area.

The research team also studied whether chickens, which also suffer from a similar coronavirus that causes infectious bronchitis, could infect turkeys. "We found that the coronavirus in chickens does not cause the disease in turkeys, although the two viral agents are very similar to each other," said Saif.

The team has been collaborating with researchers from North Carolina State University for over three years to identify the cause of PEMS and develop tests to help diagnose the disease. There are no vaccines available to protect turkey flocks.

Other OSU researchers involved in the project include Linda Saif, M. Yu, Y. Tang, M. Ismail, K. Cho and R. Dearth.

Farmers Union Delegates: Halt Consolidation In Food Industries

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Delegates to the National Farmers Union's (NFU) 99th anniversary convention adopted new policies amid growing concerns over the headlong rush toward corporate concentration in agribusiness and other food industries.

In addition to opposing the growing consolidation in food production, the delegates also reemphasized the need for greater antitrust enforcement, review of mergers and business combinations, and laws that protect family farmers and ranchers from other market-distorting business activity.

"As mergers in production, processing, transportation and retail continue to weigh the playing field against the American family farmer and rancher, we must aggressively pursue measures to protect our family farms, consumers, and the markets that serve them," said Leland Swenson, president of NFU. "Our members continue the call for Congress, the Departments of Justice and Agriculture and the Federal Trade Commission to provide the necessary scrutiny, resources, and tools to combat this trend that is destructive to agriculture."

The Farmers Union policy calls for a reversal of the trend toward a highly horizontally and vertically integrated production system through the enforcement of antitrust and fair competition laws. The special policy adoption also calls for a temporary moratorium on large agricultural mergers to allow the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to collect data that provide Congress with important information that would guide action to strengthen antitrust laws and develop economic impact statements detailing the effect such mergers will have on family farmers and ranchers and rural economies.

The convention adopted policy positions that would require firms of a certain size to provide documentation on business combinations that behave like mergers, require the Department of Justice to provide rational for permitting large business mergers, prohibit meat packer ownership of livestock prior to a slaughter, a practice that manipulates livestock prices to the detriment of independent and contract producers, repeal the Illinois Brick Supreme Court decision that bars farmers and ranchers from taking legal action unless the harm created by antitrust or anticompetitive behavior directly affects them, and opposes "slotting fees" charged to suppliers of food retail entities in order to place their product on the self.

"A fair and competitive atmosphere must be restored to all our food industries," said Swenson. "Congress must work with the USDA, the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission to respond to the growing concentration of power into the hands of a few players in the food industries. This is vital to our markets, our family farmers and ranchers, and for the revitalization of independently owned businesses everywhere."

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II
Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal
EVERLAST II IS BETTER:
- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

Metal Roofing & Siding

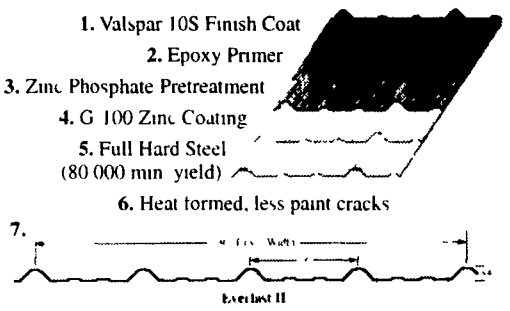
The Ultimate G-100 Process

"The Best"



NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention

2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion

3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider

4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels

5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc

6 Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)

7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F

8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square $1 69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$46.74 PER SQUARE
$1.48 PER LINEAL FT.

BEEF TIPS
Beef tenderness and genetics
The American Simmental Association was instrumental in the initiation of the NCBA Carcass Merit project to measure meat for tenderness and tie it to genetic markers. Simmental breeders are now given computer-generated measurements on the tenderness of the meat produced by different bulls. When you buy a bull from a Simmental breeder, you may ask for this data. Research is being done by Kansas State University and Cornell University.

NEW HOLLAND

Building on a good thing

You might recognize the engines, drivelines and axles on the new New Holland TS tractors. They have excellent reputations based on past performance. Thousands of customers have put these components to hard use and benefited from their performance and durability.

So, New Holland wasn't about to change a good thing. They made other improvements to these 70- to 90-PTO-hp tractors instead – like increasing the horsepower, improving the comfort of the cab, relocating the fuel tank for added convenience, adding a top road speed of 25 mph, upgrading the electrical system and adding outlets and modernizing the styling.

Better see these exciting 70- to 90-PTO-hp TS tractors for yourself. And find out how good design can become even better.
